

Jerome Fox Hits At Third Party In Speech Here

'Joined Liberty Leaguers' He Says; Charges Communists are Allies

Jerome Fox, Chilton, candidate for the Democratic nomination as governor, said in a talk here last night that the third party led by Governor Philip LaFollette has "joined the Liberty Leaguers" and that repeated reading of the new party's declaration will not reveal "a single constructive thought."

Fox struck at the governor and his new National Progressive party after declaring he was "astonished at the way Progressive speakers are aiming criticism at President Roosevelt in this campaign."

The Chilton attorney appeared before a meeting of the Outagamie County Democratic club last evening at Hotel Appleton.

Terming Democratic-Republican coalition unworkable because "a man can't serve two masters," he said: "But we've had a coalition in this state right along. A coalition of Socialists, Communists, and Progressives. The LaFollette administration must be satisfactory to the Communists or they wouldn't be going around the state endorsing it."

There have been several instances in the present campaign, he said, of Communists stumping for the LaFollette cause.

Anti-LaFollette Sentiment

"I have never witnessed such growing anti-LaFollette sentiment as there is in the state this year. . . . You can't expect much government when the governor is running around the nation campaigning for his third party, embezzling and squandering the time of the people of the state."

Fox told his listeners that because of long-delayed appointments to the public service commission, there "is only one place where the blame for the Buckman scandal can be laid and that is at the door of the governor."

The gross disbursements for the state administration, which totaled $80 million dollars in 1934, will reach 110 million by the end of the present year, Fox said. "That will be a new all-time high and it will be spent through the efforts of the man who, told you he would reduce taxes. . . . The Democratic party pledges you to save you substantial amounts in taxes."

Charges Neglect

LaFollette has neglected old age legislation, Fox charged. "During both the regular and special sessions of the legislature, bills were introduced to help the aged, but the governor saw they were sidetracked in Progressive-controlled committees. The people around the state who are eligible for the assistance know that. They know that LaFollette has neglected them."

The Democratic party alone can "keep alive the liberal movement," Fox said.

Fox was introduced by Gustave J. Keller, president of the county Democratic club. Other speakers at the meeting included Mrs. Louise Clivan, Democratic candidate for the nomination of secretary of state; Harry John Slocum, secretary to Senator F. Ryan Duffy; Gerald Jolin, Democratic candidate for assemblyman from the Second district; and Ray L. Fuerstein, Democratic candidate for county treasurer.

Henry Pleads for Combined Ballot

Declares Party Lines Must Be Cast Aside to Defeat LaFollette

Kenosha—Robert K. Henry, coalition candidate for governor, said last night that any attempt to defeat Governor LaFollette in a three-cornered contest would be futile.

"Heretofore I have mentioned 1934 and 1936 election figures to prove that Philip LaFollette was returned to office by a minority vote; in fact, with less than 50 per cent of the votes cast," Henry said. "I have also showed that the Republican-Democratic opposition to him increased from 532,000 votes in 1934 to 623,000 votes in 1936."

Stim Margin

"But, what is actually more startling is the fact that the combined votes of Republican Alexander Wiley and Democrat Arthur Luck in 1936 would have defeated LaFollette by only 60,000 votes."

"With such a slim margin on which to work when combined, how in the name of common sense can either the Democratic or the Republican can leaders hope to convince the voters that a divided vote could defeat LaFollette?"

"The only possible solution is to cast aside party lines and to nominate Robert K. Henry on the Republican and Democratic tickets so that LaFollette will have only one candidate opposing him."

TALKS AT POTTER

Potter—Walter Melchior will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Calumet county Progressive club here this evening. Melchior is an Appleton attorney and one of the principal organizers for Governor LaFollette's new Progressive national party.

Today and Tomorrow

Estimate of the European Situation

Paris, Sept. 7

During the past fortnight, that is to say in the period since Sir John Simon's speech, the peace of Europe has been hanging in the balance. It still hangs in the balance. But it is now clear enough that the crucial question is whether the British government, which is responsible to Parliament and to the dominions, can make effective and convincing diplomatic contact with Hitler, who is responsible only to his own conscience.

The key to the situation lies in the fact that Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax are the ministers of a constitutional state, and are unable, therefore, until they have a mandate from Parliament and the dominions, to say explicitly that Britain will go to war if Germany attacks Czechoslovakia. And because they are unable to be explicit, there is the great danger that Hitler will be persuaded by Herr Ribbentrop and the radical Nazis that it is safe to attack.

This being the basic fact, British diplomacy has been moving along two lines, the one through Berlin and the other through Prague. In Berlin the British have been working to convince the rulers of Germany that if Czechoslovakia is attacked, and if it resists, France will in fact go to war and that Britain will in fact, though it has no explicit engagements, go to war for France. In Prague the British through Lord Runciman have been pressing the Czechs to make concessions so drastic that they will convince the British public and the outer world, and possibly Hitler himself, that the Czechs have made every possible sacrifice to avoid war. They have asked the Czechs for concessions which Hitler can accept if what he wants is justice for the Sudeten and peace for Europe; they have asked for concessions which, if Hitler rejects them, will make him the indubitable aggressor in the event of war.

We are now at a point where it can be said that the British have been successful in Prague but that they have not yet been successful in Berlin. They have won half the battle for peace, the easier half to be sure, but everything depends upon their winning the other half.

Runciman Convinced That Czechs Want Settlement

They have persuaded the Czechs to grant great concessions. Whether these concessions will satisfy Hitler even temporarily is as yet unknown. But it is known that these concessions satisfy the British government that the Czechs are acting in good faith. There seems to be no real doubt that President Benes has convinced Lord Runciman, and through him the British government, that the Czechs are willing to redress all the express grievances of the German minority, and that for the sake of European peace they are willing to run the grave risk of disintegrating the Czechoslovak Republic. They are offering to hand over the control of law and order in certain vital strategic frontier regions to a minority who are acting under the orders of the head of a foreign and profoundly hostile state. One can obtain some conception of the extent of the Czechs' concessions by supposing that we were agreeing to turn over the control of the police in the Panama Canal Zone and in Hawaii to Japanese residents acting under orders from Tokyo. In fact, the concessions offered by the Czechs are even more dangerous than that. For the regions they are offering to turn over to the control of their enemies are nearer to their capital than Philadelphia is to Washington.

To this point the British have persuaded the Czechs to go. By this policy they are forcing the Czechs to take immeasurable risks for the future. But they have achieved important results. They have confronted Hitler with an offer which a sensible man who wants peace will find it hard to reject. They have insured the Czechs the active, not merely the passive, support of France and they have provided themselves with a moral case which they can take to the British people if worst comes to worst. A month ago British opinion was divided and uncertain as to whether the Czechs had a clear case. The case of the Czechs has now been cleansed and clarified to the point where Mr. Chamberlain could submit the case to the judgment of the British people with assurance as to what their verdict would be.

Offers of Concessions Have Changed Situation

Thus the situation has changed in an important way since Sir John Simon's speech on August 27. At that time the British government could go no further than to predict that Britain would probably be drawn into a general war. It was possible then to question the prediction because it could be argued that there was inside the Chamberlain government an influential isolationist, anti-Czech, and even pro-German faction. But by driving the Czechs to extreme concessions, Lord Runciman has altered this situation in Great Britain. The clarification of the moral record means that the government would not merely, as Sir John Simon said, be entangled in a general war but that it would have also an obligation of honor to intervene.

The supreme question of the hour is whether Hitler understands the British position and can be convinced that he cannot attack without provoking a European war. It would appear that the British have not yet been able to talk directly with Hitler. It is understood that

Former Convict Says Woman Asked Him to Kill Her

Admits Slaying but Chicago Police Seek Additional Details

Chicago—A former convict was pressed today for additional details of the slaying of Mrs. Marie Lamont, night club hostess, after confessing he strangled her because "she begged me to kill her."

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan and assistant State's Attorney John Boyle announced that William F. Raab, 38, a night club bouncer, admitted last night he throttled the woman in his hotel room. Boyle said no charges would be filed against Raab until after police finished questioning.

The nude body of the 27-year-old victim was found on a bed in Raab's quarters at the Lorraine hotel Wednesday. Raab was in a stupor when police found him wading in a Garfield park lagoon yesterday.

"Didn't Struggle"

Chief Sullivan quoted Raab as saying: "We loved each other desperately but there was no chance of our being together. She begged me to kill her. I placed my fingers around her neck and choked her. I didn't know whether I held her throat five minutes or half a hour. She didn't struggle."

The officer said Raab fixed the time of the slaying at 9 a. m. Tuesday. The latter declared his mind was blank from the time he left the hotel until he awoke last night at the detective bureau.

Detectives planned to question Raab concerning an electric lamp cord found near Mrs. Lamont's body. They expressed belief it was used to garrot her.

Mrs. Lamont was estranged from her husband, an office manager for a real estate company. She was the mother of an eight-year-old girl.

Police Captain John Stege identified Raab as a former associate of the Touhy gangsters. He served a prison term for burglary.

Campbell Points to 'Mounting Taxes' as Incomes Decrease

Racine—W. J. Campbell, candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate, asserted in a radio address last night that "business and the farmer have been heckled and reformed and taxed until almost all incentive to engage in either farming or business has disappeared."

As a result, he said, "taxes are constantly mounting and will continue to mount as income from business and farming decreases."

"The federal government at present is running on its credit," Campbell continued, "but as Mr. Roosevelt himself pointed out in 1932, it cannot continue always to do so. The interest on the federal debt alone for the present year is almost a billion dollars, and this is almost the same figure that it costs to operate the army and navy."

Asks Coalitionists To Explain Position

Stevens Point—James G. Peterson, who is running for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, asked coalition candidates in a speech here last night to explain what he termed their inconsistency in campaigning on both the Democratic and Republican state platforms.

The preambles of those platforms, he asserted, are diametrically opposed to each other.

Peterson said the Democrats commend the policies and acts of the Roosevelt administration and that the Republicans assail the "joint and multiple shortcomings" of both federal and state administrations.

"I wish that some coalition candidate would tell how he can run for public office on both these platforms," he added.

New Plumbing Supervisor In Appleton District

Madison—Richard Mason, Racine, has been named assistant state plumbing supervisor to succeed the late Robert H. Hasekuk, the state board of health announced today. Mason will do state plumbing code enforcement work in the northeastern Wisconsin unit for the board of health, including Appleton.

The Candidates

Brief Sketches of the Men Seeking Nominations

THOMAS R. AMLIE

Madison—Thomas R. Amlie, candidate for the Progressive nomination for the United States senate . . . young, he is just over 40, he has made a remarkable dent in left-wing politics in America . . . noted in congress as one of the most diligent radicals, he represents the more ardent wing of his party in opposing the "middle of the road" group represented by Herman L. Ekern, native of North Dakota, where he was born on a poor, barren farm and was weaned on the agrarian discontent which gave birth to Middlewestern insurgency . . . early espoused the Non-Partisan League, did some organizing in Wisconsin for that organization before the war . . . left the University of Minnesota because its economics professors were "reactionary," came to University of Wisconsin, became a student liberal leader, and a wrestler . . . after getting a law degree, he took a state job.

... finally settled in Elkhorn, where in 1930 he was elected to congress to succeed the late Henry Allen Cooper . . . a radical representative of one of the most conservative sections of Wisconsin . . . although Phil LaFollette got the orchids, many of his admirers feel that Amlie was mainly responsible for organizing the Progressive party in 1934 . . . has worked steadily in recent years for the organization of a Farmer-Labor party on a national scale . . . the nominee of the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation, he is supposed to be cool toward the governor's new National Progressive party . . . frequently criticized in some quarters as a Communist, Amlie is probably the foremost Wisconsin advocate of the "production for use" idea . . . his friends call him a "homespun radical," detesting Marxism but desiring revisions of capitalism . . . married, two children . . . more than six feet in stature, with the frame of a Scandinavian farmer, and a rough, unmelodious voice, he is popular in the party but is frequently criticized because of his independent spirit.

Midwest Farmers Soon To Get 1938 AAA Checks

Washington — (AP) — Midwest farmers will begin receiving checks about Oct. 1 for participating in the 1938 AAA program, agricultural adjustment administration officials said today.

The AAA is working on compliance sheets, summaries of performance and applications for payment. As soon as this work is completed the mailing of checks to farmers will be started.

Farmers will receive 10 cents a bushel on the normal yield of the acreage in the corn allotment, 12 cents on the normal yield of wheat and $1.25 an acre for production of the individual farm on the general soil-depleting acreage allotment.

All Signs are Pointing To Business Recovery as Sales Drive Gains Impetus

All signs point to a decided advance toward business recovery in the city, the state and the nation in general with the upturn being reflected in many phases of business.

Coupled with these indications are increased optimism and the general stimulus given local trade by the "Sales Mean Jobs" crusade. Leaders report that the downward spiral of the first six months of 1938 has leveled off and a distinct upturn is noticeable.

Optimism has manifested itself in definite signs of expansion of consumer purchasing during July and August, improved position of inventories of consumer goods in the hands of retailers and a large influx to New York and Chicago of retail merchants and buyers in a "buying mood."

Wiley Attacks New Deal Taxes

Candidate Says 'Democracy in Nation Has Become Misnomer'

Milwaukee—(AP)—Alexander Wiley, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, declared last night that democracy in the nation today has become a misnomer, with the term representing the rights of the state and not of the individual.

"We have become a nation with a government not by consent of the governed but by commands of a clique under the sway of one man in the nation and one man in the state," Wiley said.

"The cry of taxation without representation might well again be raised with every justification. In theory our 'duly' elected representatives approved those mounting taxes. But by actually doing they? Did you? We have been governed by 'rubber stamps' collected by the nation's foremost stamp collector."

Assert 'Purge' Will Be Limited in Scope

New York—(AP)—The New York Times says in a special dispatch from Hyde Park that "President Roosevelt's 'purge' of the party conservative and anti-New Deal Democrats will be limited for the present to the few candidates he has already marked for opposition in the primaries; it was indicated Thursday after a conference between the chief executive and Attorney General Cummings."

The Times also said it was understood there would be no attempt by the Roosevelt forces to displace Senator Loneragan at the Connecticut state Democratic convention despite his record of opposition of New Deal measures.

HEARING ON PROJECT
Madison—(AP)—The state public service commission has scheduled a hearing in Madison Sept. 26 on the application of the state highway commission for an overhead bridge where Highway 20 crosses the Milwaukee road tracks near Sturtevant in Racine county. The bridge plans have been approved by the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

Seek Reduction in Fluid Milk Prices in Urban Markets

Proposal Aimed to Stimulate Consumption Demand To Divert Surpluses

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Into Wisconsin's troubled dairy situation this week was thrown a proposal from the influential Wisconsin Cheesemakers' association for a general reduction in the fluid milk prices in urban regulated markets in order to stimulate a consumption demand which will divert huge surpluses now confronting creameries, cheese factories and condenseries.

In a tone which led some Capitol observers to believe that C. E. Broughton of Sheboygan, the state department of agriculture's most vehement critic, was involved, the Cheesemakers' demand that the department use its powers over retail milk prices in urban markets to reduce retail prices and end the discrimination against milk producers who are geographically unable to sell to those markets, and are forced to sell at exceedingly low prices in the surplus markets provided in cheese factories, condenseries and creameries.

The letter was signed by Earl B. Whiting of Gillett, prominent Oconto county cheese man, and president of the cheesemakers organization. Other officers are L. E. Kopitzke of Marion, vice president, C. J. Ebert of Gresham, Shawano county, secretary.

Restricted Market
The petition said that producers residing outside the favored, or urban, territory covered by state price regulations are barred or denied participation in this restricted market, and that their milk must be sent to the creamery or cheese factory markets, often at a price half that received by the favored producers.

"When there is a surplus of milk as at the present time, the price range is so inequitable that one farmer may receive the higher price and a neighboring farmer, because of territorial restrictions or lack of consideration at the hand of a city dealer, is forced to sell at a lower price."

A lowering of retail prices in the city markets would solve the problem of surplus to a large degree because of an immediate increase in consumption which would result, the cheesemakers told Ralph E. Ammon, director of the agriculture department.

Ammon last night met with the cheesemakers at the Hotel Beaumont in Green Bay, and announced that a conference of all dairy industry representatives to consider the possibility of lower retail milk prices in the cities will be held in Fond du Lac Sept. 22.

Kaukauna Argues Proposed Outlay For Grignon Home

Council Will Settle $4,000 Question at Meeting Sept. 21

Kaukauna—Should the city of Kaukauna contribute $4,000 as its share toward purchasing and renovating the historic Grignon home? That's the question brought before the common council Tuesday night and that's the question now being debated daily by the city's taxpayers.

The Outagamie Pioneer and Historical society has an option on the home and grounds which will expire on Oct. 1. The present plan is for the county to contribute $4,000, the city another $4,000, and to raise $3,000 through the schoolchildren of the county. The county board already has expressed its willingness to contribute $4,000 if Kaukauna will do likewise.

Proponents of the project point out that since the re-routing of Highway 41 many cars pass on the outskirts of the city without stopping, and something should be done to make it worthwhile to stop here. Other cities have drawn large crowds with far less historic and attractive spots than the Grignon home, and, properly repaired the Grignon home will be second to none in the state as such an attraction.

Private Proposals
An historic shrine such as this should be in the hands of the city, those in favor of purchasing the house and land argue. Private concerns may take over the place and run it entirely from a business angle if the city does not. Several offers from concerns with just this intent have been made.

The money the city is giving will be less than half of the $11,000 total, and Kaukauna will get most of the benefits. It has been predicted that properly repaired and advertised the home will attract more than 20,000 visitors each year to Kaukauna.

Those who oppose buying the home have one main theme in their arguments—the $4,000. The city has already borrowed almost to the limit of its constitutional capacity, they point out, and to purchase the home an increase in the tax rate probably would be necessary.

The common council will settle the question at its meeting Sept. 21. Aldermen postponed decision at their Tuesday meeting until the finance committee could bring in a recommendation. A packed council chamber is anticipated on the 21st as citizens express their opinions.

Kaukauna—The Loyal Star Five Hundred club met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Joseph Promer, Whitney street. Prizes were won by Mrs. Emil Leick, Mrs. Nancy Rutter and Mrs. John Leick. The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. William Bay.

High School Gridders Get First Chalk Drill

Kaukauna — Coach Paul E. Little's Kaukauna High school gridders received their first chalk talk of the season yesterday afternoon as rain made the library practice ground uninhabitable. Weather permitting, the footballers will go through practice this afternoon and tomorrow will entertain Chilton here in a practice game.

This practice contest will help Little to get a good line on just who's going to be of value this year. Half a dozen of the candidates have had little or no experience at the game, and tomorrow will enable Little to estimate their worth.

Everyone on the squad probably will participate before the day is over, and some of them will be tried at two or more positions. Skill in special departments of play, such as kicking off, punting, passing and place kicking, will be looked for. The Kavs will have one more week before opening the regular season here a week from tomorrow against Sheboygan North. ONE MAN SITDOWN

Regina—(P)—The Saskatchewan Department of Education sent $50 to a teacher at the village of Eyre, near the Alberta border, and ended a sitdown strike.

Having received no salary since Dec. 31, 1937, and unable to buy gasoline to leave the district, the unnamed teacher threatened to remain at his present boarding place or move into a hotel and charge the bill up to the municipality.

The instructor had received seven dollars a month for groceries but the family with whom he boarded was on relief and could not afford to keep him longer.

Lights Will Go To School Field

Utility Commission Agrees To Transfer Equipment From Ball Park

Kaukauna — The making of the high school athletic field into a city recreational center, with the installation of a lighting system for night contests and the possible construction of a baseball diamond, was announced this morning by city officials. The utility commission, owners of the lights now at the baseball park, have agreed to transfer the equipment to the new site. The high school athletic council suggested the expanding of the field's facilities.

No definite time has been set for the completion of the lighting system, but work will be started at once.

It is thought that having the lights on the high school would give the city an athletic center centrally located. Other cities in the state now have lighting systems, which may be used for baseball, football, and any other community projects. Music festivals, pageants and almost any event of city-wide interest requiring outdoor presentation would have the necessary space. With the capacious high school auditorium Kaukauna would then be equipped to handle almost any affair.

Kaukauna Graduate To Study at Hospital

Kaukauna — Clarence Jaeger, son of Mrs. Louis Jaeger, 216 Augustine street, will continue his education this year at Alexian Brothers Hospital school of nursing, St. Louis. The hospital is affiliated with the St. Louis University school of nursing, and will begin sessions Sept. 14. Jaeger, a Kaukauna High school graduate of last spring, left today for St. Louis, and will visit with friends at Milwaukee and Chicago on the way.

60 Boys Turn Out for 6-Man Football Teams

Kaukauna — About 60 boys turned out this week as candidates for the new 6-man football teams to be organized this year. Equipment was issued and practices will be held as soon as the rainy season ends. Leagues will be organized and supervised play held.

The fastest creature that lives is a small fly that looks like a honeybee. It is a scant half inch long and is estimated by scientists to attain a speed of 800 miles an hour. It is the cephenemyia, a species of botfly.

White Named Head of Fraternal Pin League

Kaukauna — Homer White was elected president and Norbert Dietzler named secretary-treasurer of the Fraternal bowling league at an organization meeting this week. The bowling season will open on Friday night, Sept. 30. Eight teams will participate, with several new entries expected.

If Roosevelt Wants Third Term He's Going at It the Wrong Way

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington—If Roosevelt is preparing to run for a third term, he is going about it in the hardest way. No politician would do it that way. If Roosevelt wanted to be re-nominated and re-elected in 1940, the orthodox and practical course would be to placate all factions in his party and hold the machinery together behind him.

Actually Roosevelt is doing the opposite. He is fighting powerful groups within his party, alienating strong leaders, creating division. A prospective candidate would be greasing all factions. He would be trying to pull them together instead of setting them one against the other. Why is Jim Farley wearing such a long face? He sees the Democratic party being split in a bitter factional row. Roosevelt is splitting it over questions of principle which Farley thinks are secondary to party unity. No man obsessed by an ambition to be re-elected would be burning the bridges that Roosevelt is burning. Not unless he had completely lost his head.

Roosevelt's performance is rather that to be expected of a man who sees his term of office ending and who is intent, at all costs, upon stamping the imprint of his policies indelibly on the party so that they will not be scrapped by machine politicians the moment he lets go.

While the New Deal has been tremendously popular, everyone who knows anything about politics knows that the Democratic organizations in many states are controlled by politicians who are merely "fellow travelers" so long as it is expedient. What does the average politician care about principle? Politics is his business and he'll sell whatever brand of goods the customers seem to fancy at the moment. Maryland rolled up the largest majority for Roosevelt in 1936 that it ever gave to any man. Yet the Democratic organization in Maryland is opposed to the New Deal. Its front, Tydings, had to be strong-armed into seconding Roosevelt's nomination in 1936 and his voting record in the senate has been more Republican than Democratic.

Lack of Organization Caused Nevada Defeat
In Nevada, two New Dealers were running against Senator McCarran for the Democratic nomination. But they had no organization support. The Democratic organization was behind McCarran and it didn't matter if he had been off the reservation at Washington much of the time.

Even the administration's own fixer in the senate, Jimmy Byrnes, threw his federal patronage machine behind the renomination of Cotton Ed Smith, who is still fighting the Civil War. What do Hague, Fenderson, or any of these state democratic bosses care about the Roosevelt program? They're in politics for something else. Look at the sellout of the Democratic organization in Indiana which renominated Senator Van Nuys in order to sweeten the setup for Paul McNutt's presidential campaign. McNutt Democrats were going to crucify him until they discovered that he might bite back.

Regular Politicians Are Ready To Take Over

That's the sort of stuff that lies under the surface of the New Deal. Roosevelt has erected a facade by setting up a program which has captured popular imagination. He knows that the minute he steps out, the regular politicians will try to take over lock, stock and barrel. They did it when Wilson left the White House. They did it when T. R. left, even though he set up his own man, Taft, in his place. It will be so after Roosevelt goes except insofar as he can break some of these men and shift their power to more sympathetic hands. He won't get very far with that. He may be able to get a fight started that will be carried on a while by popular momentum.

But remaking the Democratic party will be a long slow job. Reform movements like young. They develop around a personality which is able to carry on for a while, and possibly leave some momentum behind. But the followers soon get out of breath. Few are long-winded enough to go on. And all the while the organized politicians are on the job, ready to pick up the pieces and pocket them.

WHY NOT PLOW IN THE COWS?

If one still persists in attempting to ferret out any underlying principle, rule, notion or idea that may actuate Washington in deciding the many perplexing problems it has faced in the last five years is it not evident that certain questions must be answered?

Why should we plow in wheat, cotton, tobacco, potatoes and even pigs and not plow in cows?

Our crops were plowed in in order to increase the price of the remainder, a price that was jeopardized because of the abundant supply. But if this be true why did we extend the dairy herds in the South? Why make it possible for idle cotton and tobacco acres to graze cows? What good is accomplished by rushing Texas, for instance, from 30th place as a cheese producing state to 6th which it now occupies?

What good is accomplished by so conducting national affairs that cheese factories have become the principal buildings erected in the south?

And after the dairy man is brought down to ruin alongside the cotton planter what does the plan offer him, or is there a plan, or is that somebody else's job?

In the meantime we may remark that our government is actually spending billions to build great dams which are to irrigate and render fertile hitherto sterile and unproductive acres and which the laws will keep unseeded because we are said to have too much.

There is probably only one thing to do with such questions. Denounce as a traitor or at least a Tory anyone who puts them.

But, before the interesting subject is terminated, we trust it will not be considered impertinent to press another inquiry.

Of course all realize that the government depends for its funds primarily upon taxation. Everyone will agree, too, that a person's capacity to be taxed depends upon his opportunity to earn and the opportunity of his savings to earn. And no one will dispute that the government will need an ever increasing sum to handle its big debts.

Why then should the government destroy in so many directions the earning power of its citizens?

We are not seeking to put our finger upon just what fever rages in the breasts of our rulers. It would take the most capable specialist to even attempt that job and then he would fail. But from admitted facts, the clear and undisputed truth, we find a people expecting to become rich by plowing under a part of a crop to make the remnant command higher prices but at the same time destroying the wealth of the people which prevents them from being able to pay the higher prices. Then we bring in a few million more acres to show our capacity for irrigation and there-by jeopardize what we have already thought we accomplished by plowing under some of our crops.

And to add some very hot tobacco sauce to this devil's stew we run a tack into the banks and demand they shall grant liberal credits to stimulate business in every direction.

But now we are against a stone wall. For people cannot be so stimulated excepting by sensible, seasoned and responsible practices.

The constitution apparently needs a major amendment. Congress should be given authority to peg the confidence of the people. It has enough control over the banks, the money, the farms, the utilities and the other property of the people. It must learn to shape their intellects.

USE OF INVENTIONS—

"The super-man invented the airplane, but the ape has gotten hold of it," declared a recent speaker, decrying the use of aircraft in bombing defenseless civilians.

"To such base uses do we come," said Shakespeare, but the fate of the airplane, unfortunately, is not unusual.

Genius invented the automobile and gave it a speed of 90 miles an hour, so that drunkards, idiots and plain fools could kill 40,000 victims a year.

Genius invented the railroad train, so that its development could be hamstrung by bungling and repressive legislative burdens.

Hoe invented the cylinder press and Mergenthaler the linotype, making possible the daily newspaper, and opening the door to propagandists of all kinds who attempt to divert it to their own purposes—and to dictators abroad who do so divert it. Daguerre brought forth the photographic emulsion, so that we may gaze on unending processions of Hollywood divorcees with their legs crossed.

Bell fathered the telephone, so that some moron can call up and say "Guess who this is?"

And Marconi's radio, with a noble record of life saving, now assaults our ears with "Flat-Foot Floogie on the Floy Floy."

What price genius?

A FRUIT OF THE JEWISH BOYCOTT

Italy's adoption of a race war against the Jews is plausible only because incited so to do by Germany.

The maximum estimate of Jews in Italy is 85,000. In a population of about 44 millions this is not only trivial but unnoticeable under ordinary conditions. All the Jews in Italy wouldn't populate one ward in Rome, Naples, Genoa or Milan. The talk about Italian racial purity is equally ridiculous. If America may be called the nineteenth century melting pot, Italy may be aptly described as The Melting Pot of the Ages. The south of Italy is Greek, the north is German, otherwise it has in substantial amounts every blood in North Africa, Asia Minor and Europe itself.

The Jewish boycott formulated in New York, is certainly a thorn in Hitler's side and thorns make for retaliation. One dictator sustains another, picks the same friends and picks upon the same foes.

Had there been no Jewish boycott of Germany there is every good reason to believe that the unwarranted torture of these innocent people would have been abandoned long since. The boycott adds kerosene to the fire and makes it into an eternal flame.

Well-informed Jewry seems sufficiently convinced in many places that the boycott was a mistake, judging by the conduct of leading Jews and their statements which indicate an absence of support for it.

But since this particular boycott has stressed more than any preceding one that a boycott is an instrument of war, it may bring about a change in America's attitude in respect to this weapon. On some occasions the American Federation of Labor, distressed or provoked at the mistreatment of workers in certain countries, has passed resolutions of boycott. In this retaliation, members may have received some comfort but it is doubtful whether their comrades in other lands received any genuine help.

It is one thing to say that an instrument of war cannot be utilized by anything but the nation, but to that must be added the fact that a boycott, like a rattler, turns often upon those who release it and is just as likely to bring misery to those who never even heard of it.

Such being the case, it should be abandoned.

HIGHER RATES TO THE AGED

Senator McAdoo declared gloomily after his defeat by Sheridan Downey that the latter's proposal of paying thirty dollars every Thursday to every unemployed person over fifty years of age would lead to chaos.

Many people have been thinking and stating that the measures Mr. McAdoo has supported as a spoke in the Roosevelt administration would also lead to chaos.

But the killing thing to the defeated Senator from California is that if the Roosevelt program did not lead to chaos, it certainly led to Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday, which in turn will lead to chaos.

Chaos always seems to be quite a distance away. It is progressively down the steps instead of up to the tower but how far down no one in America has ever discovered.

The President has somewhat belittled the Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday as a state issue, with a grim reminder that the script plan may be in violation of the constitution.

We think that California did wise to choose Mr. Downey over Mr. McAdoo. Whether the Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday will work or flop belongs in the tender and tricky hands of the future. We have no hesitation in saying it will flop with a dull, abysmal thud.

Yet Mr. Downey is a better statesman than Mr. McAdoo. So is old Doc Townsend. So is every man who never hands out bounty without evolving a plan to first obtain it.

Mr. McAdoo supports a program built upon borrowing. Mr. Downey supports a program built upon providing, if provision is possible.

The New Dealers are beginning to shake in their boots because of the crop of men in the political world who premise bigger things.

Aside from methods it does seem shabby to offer them dimes to the aged while these ruddy checked young politicians get anywhere from three hundred to a thousand dollars a month.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—GHOST STORY: There is a game called "ghost" which they play around town sometimes. One player will speak a letter. The next one will add a letter, the purpose being to spell a word.

For instance, the first player will say "M." The second will say "Q." The third "S" and the fourth "T"—spelling "most." The object of the game is to avoid completing a word. If a player gets stuck then he is given a "G." If he is stuck again he is given a "H," and so on until he gets the five letters that spell "GHOST."

I'm probably wrong on some of the details, on account of I do not play games with much enthusiasm. The other day, I happened down to a place where several pickets were killing time before taking up their signs and going to work, and they were playing "Ghost." After awhile they asked me if I would like to play, I said I would, although my heart wasn't in it. I always lose.

The game started. The first letter was "M" and the second "I" and the third "Z." Then it was my turn. I pondered. I said finally that I was stuck; that I didn't know of any word that started with "Miz." Whereupon the men jumped up and shouted with glee, for they had stuck a white collar fellow.

"I give up," I said. "What is the word that begins with 'Miz'?"

The leader shouted: "The word is 'Miserable.' We catch almost everybody with that."

Speaking of Ghosts: One of the most successful literary ghosts in New York is Prosper Buranelli, one of that large alumni of the old New York World whom you are apt to meet almost anywhere these days.

Prosper is a literary man in his own right, but his big success lies in the work he has done under other men's bylines. I suspect it wouldn't be orthodox for me to give the name of the nationally famous writer-lecturer-commentator for whom Prosper does much of the writing, but you have my word for it that the man is one of the most prominent in the business.

When a writer goes into writing on an assembly line basis, he obviously doesn't have time to do it all himself. At the same time, he can't afford to cheapen his product by hiring ordinary hacks. Consequently he hires a ghost—sometimes two or three ghosts—and the ghosts do the work, and the Big Shot takes the bows. It sounds a little unfair, but the ghosts are satisfied, so there's no sense in my waxing indignant. (I used to be a ghost myself.)

There is even a Ghost Writers' Bureau which solicits general business. It will write you a speech to be delivered in the Occasion of the Dedication of a Statue to Our Beloved Mayor, or a letter proposing marriage, or a sharp note demanding payment, or a book as long as "Gone With the Wind," or even a bit of doggerel, if it's poetry you want.

These ghosts are really an important element of the city's life. They are competent workmen who, mostly, have trouble in marketing their genius under their own names but who, under the inspiration of a famous name, will write their fool heads off.

A couple of years ago a friend of mine was a ghost for a gangster who claimed to have been very palmy—well, Vincent Coll, the shadowy iron gang leader, now deceased. This gangster wanted to tell the true story of Coll, and an editor sent him to my friend to do the job. The gangster—his name was Joe—told the bloodiest things you ever heard of. He told who killed whom. Always after revealing some secret that would send a man to the electric chair if repeated to the Law, the gangster would say: "Keep your trap shut about what I'm telling you, Understand?"

Then my friend would say: "You wouldn't rub me out, would you, Joe?"

And he would reply: "Nothing like that. I wouldn't kill you. But there are always accidents—Understand? You're walking along, and a brick hits you—Understand? Just an accident. And I don't want no accidents to happen to you if you keep your trap shut, I'm pretty sure there won't be no accident—Understand?"

I mention this little episode merely to emphasize that being a ghost, while profitable, is sometimes not conducive to longevity.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Ninety-one entries had been made for the races at the Fox river valley fair following weeks. It was by far the largest list of entries ever made for this vicinity.

At the preliminary meeting of the Appleton High school athletic association held at the high school the previous evening, eighty students expressed their willingness to get out for football practice. Coach E. C. Offinger gave a short talk. The first game was to be played with New London.

J. Worrel and Charles Emdor were among those preparing to go duck hunting. County Clerk William F. Wolf and Register of Deeds A. G. Koch were at Seymour that day attending the fair.

Mrs. W. H. H. left for Northampton, Mass., that day with her daughter, Margaret, who was to enter Smith college.

10 YEARS AGO

Friday, Sept. 7, 1928

John Mayer was reelected grand knight of Nicolet council, Knights of Columbus, at Menasha the previous evening. Other officers elected were John Powers, vice grand knight; Mike Boden, chancellor; Fred Schreiber, financial secretary; Frank Burroughs, corresponding secretary; Victor Sues, treasurer; Konrad Murphy, warden; J. Cyril Hyland, inner guard; A. Koster, outer guard; William Austin, trustee for three years.

Forty-nine youngsters of various size and dimension answered Coach Joseph Shields' call for practice for the Appleton High school football team at the Spencer street athletic field.

For the second time in little more than a year's time the Grand hotel at New London had changed hands, this time being sold to J. A. Tilley of Viola.

The C-1077 Ford tri-motorized plane which took Mrs. Lindbergh and party to Mexico and which assisted in rescuing passengers on the Bremen plane was to stop off at the Held airport at Neenah within the next few days.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

I AM IN LOVE WITH SILENCE

I am in love with silence, because you are often silent. . . In a crowded room your stillness rests me. . . Clothed in gentian blue.

And fragrant with the summer night's perfume. You do not speak, but like the summer night. You let the loveliness of what you are speak for you. . . In your eyes, the steady light.

Of your calm spirit shines like yonder star. I am in love with everything you love: Long quiet evenings with a friendly book. An open fire, and harmony to prove.

That there are dreams within your loving look. Silence is more expressive than a word. When through its calm, your warm heart can be heard.

A Bystander
In Washington

While Preston Grover is on vacation, persons prominent in official and political life of the nation and in journalism are substituting for him. Today's guest column is written—

BY MILO M. THOMPSON

Chief of the Washington Bureau of The Associated Press

Washington — When a word of such diverse political implications as "purge" happens to get strongly underscored in American political speech, you can expect the practical politicians to worry it as a pack of terriers worries a rat.

It has happened before. It happened to "mandate" when it was the proud boast of Democratic politicians that the re-election of President Roosevelt constituted the people's mandate to continue with New Deal policies.

It happened to "choose" when President Coolidge passed out unsmilingly to newspapermen, on narrow slips of paper, that characteristically terse line: "I do not choose to run in 1928."

Some of the practical politicians of the Democratic party are admitting just now a sort of hopeless embarrassment over the way the word "purge" has ballooned into prominence in the current off-year election. There are some who grumble because it seems somehow unfair, a weasel word, a propaganda word.

But "purge" is as intrinsically pat at its underscoring was inevitable. To purge, says the dictionary, is to purify or cleanse by separating and carrying off whatever is impure, foreign or superfluous. And few will deny that such definition comprehends exactly what is in the minds of Democratic party leaders from the President down.

Linked to Dictatorships It was not, of course, purely the patness of "purge" which made it inevitable that the present phenomenon would be so tagged. Part of the certainty lay in the clinging alliterativeness of the phrase "party purge" and part of it lay in its great usefulness to headline and caption writers. "Purge" has only five letters. It fits so well into limited space. The urge for shortness and brevity which limited head writers to make "probe" a crude journalistic equivalent of "investigation" was certain to push "purge" into the headlines.

Probably no one would be complaining were it not for the fact that, in the history of recent years, the word has taken on additional implications. For political purposes, its primary meaning became confused with a secondary meaning meaning when Mussolini, in his original Italian fascist purge, had the word taken on additional implications. For political purposes, its primary meaning became confused with a secondary meaning meaning when Mussolini, in his original Italian fascist purge, had the word taken on additional implications.

Then came the no less famous "blood purge" in Nazi Germany which was followed by a similar liquidation in Russia. That was enough to identify a purge with dictatorships and, for this generation at least, to brand it as their instrument, their weapon and their method.

The fundamental correctness of the word in the present instance seems a misfortune of the first magnitude to some Democrats because of the peculiar circumstances of the present efforts at party purification.

It just happens that persons marked for party discard are persons who opposed the court bill and the reorganization bill, two measures concerning which the cry of dictatorship was raised to such extent that the President himself saw fit to disclaim either desire or qualifications for dictatorship.

The Republican party chairman lost no time in tying the Old World and New World situations together. John Hamilton accused the President of "adopting the Russian technique of the purge" in an effort to "divert our attention from the failures of the New Deal."

When Wilson Spoke What the "boubled" Democrats here seem to be striving hard to do is to convince the public that what is happening is not Russian, not German, not Italian, but actually nothing more than what President Woodrow Wilson had in mind when he said at Indianapolis on January 8, 1915:

"The country is not going to use any party that can not do continuous and consistent teamwork. If any group of men should dare to break the solidarity of the Democratic team for any purpose, they will be from any motive, they will be most unenviable notoriety and a responsibility which will bring deep bitterness to them. The only party that is serviceable to a nation is a party that can hold absolutely together and march with the discipline and with the zest of a conquering host."

Wilson was not accused of dictatorship inclinations when he said that. The modern dictator had not yet been invented and the old ones were buried with the Caesars.

CAR GOES BERSERK

Rockford, Ill. —(7)—Mr. and Mrs. John Estes quit driving their new automobile shortly after they bought it.

Neither knew much about mechanical gadgets but John had heard that when the starter stuck one could get things going by pushing a car in gear.

So he put Mrs. Estes behind the wheel and the gears into reverse before he went out front to push. Things got going in great shape. The car backed over a curb, crashed into Arthur Gallagher's front porch, swerved down an alley, peeled the paint of Arthur's house, missed a telephone pole and a tree by inches tore down a trolley and settled in the middle of a fine garden.

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NEURITIS IS NOT A SIMPLE MATTER

Altho shortage of vitamin D and consequent deficiency in calcium and phosphorus assimilation and utilization is a common cause of "nervous weakness," and shortage of vitamin B is a common cause of neuritis, we must remember that these are not the only causes of the conditions mentioned.

Other specific causes of neuritis (nerve inflammation) are chronic lead poisoning, chronic arsenic poisoning, injury of the nerve, chronic alcoholism, carbon monoxide poisoning, carbon bisulphide poisoning, benzene (benzol, the solvent, not benzine or gasoline), and infection.

In no instance is it advisable or even safe for one who has or believes he has neuritis to attempt the diagnosis and treatment of his own trouble. The constant care and treatment of a physician is as essential as it is for broken arm. Here we can make only a few pertinent observations to counteract certain popular fallacies.

Neuritis is literally inflammation of nerve. One nerve or many may be involved, but the condition never jumps about nor "bothers" today or this week and not tomorrow or next week. In other words it is a silly fad to call vague aches or pains "neuritis" — as silly as it is to call them "rheumatism." Pain, indeed, is not an essential symptom or sign of neuritis. The diagnosis of neuritis rests on other signs (rather than symptoms) elicited by the physician's examination in the earlier stage, some of them becoming manifest in a later stage of the trouble, notably atrophy or wasting and flabbiness, paresis, weakening or paralysis of muscles supplied by the affected nerve or nerves. Impairment or loss of reflexes and the reaction of degeneration under the galvanic test are other signs of neuritis.

"Wrist drop," that is, weakening, paresis or partial paralysis of muscles of the forearm which extend or straighten out the wrist, is a familiar evidence of lead poisoning, as in painters, but occurs also from alcoholism in heavy drinkers or secret toppers, and sometimes from pressure on the trunk of the same nerve (musculo-spiral) in the arm by crutch or by lying heavily on the arm during deep sleep, coma or prolonged anesthesia.

"Steppage gait" is characteristic of neuritis of the peroneal nerve in the leg, from early locomotor ataxia, diabetes, chronic arsenic poisoning, sometimes chronic alcoholism; the patient in walking has to raise the foot very high at each step because the toes droop and power to flex the foot or draw up the foot is impaired or lost.

Facial palsy, that is, loss of function of muscles of one side of the face, so that the patient is unable to frown, open and shut the eye, show his teeth, smile, whistle or blow out his cheeks, is a fairly common occurrence, usually being first noticed on awakening in the morning. It is due to inflammation of the seventh cranial nerve, the facial nerve.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Aluminum Having obtained some relief from indigestion by taking aluminum hydroxide, I wonder if there is likely to be any poisonous effect eventually if I continue taking it? Mrs. L. H.

Answer—It is a mild astringent, might give relief for certain complaints called "indigestion," cannot cure anything, is no more poisonous than iron. Wouldn't it be wiser to have medical examination to determine nature of your trouble and obtain proper advice or treatment? Of course "indigestion" may mean anything or nothing.

Freed From Slavery

Your booklet "The Constipation Habit" helped me overcome this habit of years and I am grateful, W. K. F.

Answer—That booklet has broken the habit in a good many cases. Often confirmed victims fail to get the idea with the first reading, become interested with the second reading, finally decide to have a go at it. Of these, a few weaken and go back to the old physics, but a majority win out and never need physic again. For copy send ten cent and stamped three cent envelope bearing your address.

Traffic Accident Toll Is Local and Individual Problem, Clubwomen Told

A VIVID PICTURE of the highway accident situation in Wisconsin was presented by West A. Burdick, director of the highway traffic department for the Wisconsin Highway Commission at the first meeting of Appleton Federated Woman's club for the fall Thursday afternoon at the club house. Basing its findings on actual cases, the highway commission has found that the problem is a local one, Mr. Burdick said, records showing that 95 per cent of accidents in the state involve local people, and that drivers or pedestrians are the main contributing factors in highway accidents, 99 per cent of the accidents being caused by failure on the part of driver or pedestrian and only 1 per cent by the car or the highway.

Mr. Burdick maintained that there is not a highway in the state of Wisconsin that cannot be driven safely. He spoke of the large number of fatal accidents caused by drinking drivers, pointing out that two or three drinks of alcoholic liquor can make a driver so overconfident of his ability to drive that he becomes reckless. His department classifies a drunken driver as a potential murderer, the speaker stated, and a reckless driver almost as bad.

The death rate from highway accidents in this state was lowered 35 per cent this year from that of last year, Mr. Burdick explained, giving Wisconsin a rating of fourth from the top in safety. He praised the program of teaching safety in the schools and pointed out that if children form safety habits while young they will grow up in a world where highway accidents will be greatly reduced.

The speaker said that teachers and schools in Wisconsin have responded splendidly in the safety campaign, and as a result the accident rate among children of school age has fallen off greatly during the school term. The parents themselves sometimes undo the good work when they break safety rules and cause their children to do so, Mr. Burdick said, mentioning jaywalking and walking from behind parked cars as two great hazards.

More highway accidents have been reported to the highway commission this year than last, he added, but explained this fact by pointing out that people are becoming educated to the law that requires reports of all accidents involving injury or considerable damage.

Asks Cooperation
In conclusion the speaker said that county safety council will be reorganized in Outagamie county soon, and urged that every individual make it his responsibility to drive and walk safely in order to solve the accident problem.

Irving Schwelke, general European director, Paris correspondent and associate editor of Musical Courier of New York, who is spending the summer in Appleton, entertained the women with several reminiscences of his youth in Appleton. He spoke of the old Appleton High school as holding many memories for him and told of an occasion when he was asked to play the piano at a program during the noon hour. Some of the boys perpetrated a scheme to plant an alarm clock in the piano which would go off during one of Schwelke's pieces, but one of the teachers, getting an inkling of the plot, switched numbers on the program so that the alarm sounded during the oration of the ring-leader of the plot. When the principal asked who had put the clock there, the entire student body rose as one, the speaker said.

Mr. Schwelke told of having won a prize for a national contest sponsored by Women's Christian Temperance Union when he was a student at Columbus school. The subject was the value of total abstinence to life, one about which he knew very little at that age, the speaker confessed. As the result of his victory the flag was flown from the school one day, he said, and one of his younger asked another, "Why is the flag up on the school?" The second answered "That's because you shouldn't drink."

Explains Work
The speaker mentioned a few of the usual questions asked of music critics and explained that criticism is not fault-finding but appreciation.

Mr. Schwelke closed by reading an interview with Minnie Hauk, the first American singer to achieve fame abroad, taken from his most recent book, "Views and Interviews." The singer played in Carmen over 700 times.

Other books which Mr. Schwelke has written are "Kings Jazz and David," "Alexandre Tansman," and "History of American Music," and he also has contributed to over 80 magazines of the United States and other countries. He was made an officer of the French Academy in 1930 and an officer of National Education in 1937.

Delegates to the state convention of Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs to be held Oct. 11, 12 and 13 in Racine were elected during the business meeting yesterday.

Don't Dig Potatoes in Rain, Agent Advises

This week's rains are delaying sowing and stimulating the late blight in potato fields in the county, R. C. Swanson, agricultural agent, said today.

Farmers are advised not to dig potatoes during rain but to allow the ground to dry first. If possible, potatoes should be pitted in the field before being placed in storage bins, the agent said.

Cabbage Growers To Form Co-op at Shiocton School

Farmers Plan Organization To Handle Selling of Surplus Produce

A gathering of Outagamie county cabbage growers to form a cooperative organization of farmers in this area to arrange the selling of surplus cabbage to the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation will be held at 9 o'clock Monday evening at Shiocton High school.

Representative growers will meet at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the courthouse to plan the meeting and push organization.

Ralph Headley, state representative of the surplus commodities corporation, will be at both meetings to explain the workings of organization he represents.

Congressman George J. Schneider, who arranged the meetings, will attend both. He said today that a permanent cooperative organization is essential for participation in the surplus commodities plan.

Part of the responsibility of administering the program and arranging the sale of cabbage will rest with officers selected by cabbage producers in the county, Schneider said.

Schneider was in Green Bay today to confer with James Cavanaugh, county agent, to push plans for a similar organization in Brown county.

Asher Hobson, a state department of agriculture economist, will be at the Monday meeting to aid in developing the cooperative. R. C. Swanson, county agent, who is contacting farmers, also will attend both sessions.

The Monday meeting originally was scheduled at the county courthouse but was transferred to Shiocton High school so that a larger crowd could be accommodated.

Britons Clamor For Strong Action To Curb Germany

test against some concessions held out to the Sudeten Germans. The newspaper A-Zet warned that disorderly Sudeten demonstrations "recall only too well the manner in which the attack on Austria began." It referred to the German annexation of Austria March 13.

The paper and the government press demanded stringent police measures to prevent further disturbances by any faction.

Paris—(P)—With French nervousness regarding Britain's position in the German-Czech crisis increasing, diplomatic circles reported today that Charles Corbin, French ambassador to London, had been instructed to ask the British government to proclaim publicly that it would defend the territorial integrity of Czechoslovakia.

A high foreign office official said he was unable either to confirm or deny this report.

Meanwhile, leaves of employees in the government-owned communications system were cancelled by Premier-Defense Minister Daladier, extending similar precautionary measures already applied to the army, navy and air corps since the Czech-German crisis arose.

Naval reserve officers in Paris received official notices this morning advising them to be ready for duty if necessary.

Telegraph, telephone and postal workers disclosed they were ordered to remain near their posts in view of "international difficulties of these critical days."

While officers and sailors of the French Atlantic fleet hurried back to their warships which were loading supplies and munitions for 60 days of service, the army checked up on its defenses of the Pyrenees frontier opposite insurgent Spain.

In the article, Helbie suggested observance of Constitution day, Sept. 17, and Education week, with county-wide meetings at which young people would be guests.

Hydro Authority Counsel Continues Fight for U. S. Funds for Gigantic Project

capacity of existing power plants on the Fox.

Three factors were deemed significant here.

First—The president, in naming a special committee Wednesday to study needs of power development and coordination for emergency recognized the need for better nationwide power development and interconnection.

Second—Senator F. Ryan Duffy, after spending the weekend with President Roosevelt and National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, stated: "I am in favor of the power and flood control project whereas before he had said 'I am not opposed' to the project. Both before and after his trip on the Potomac on the president's yacht, Duffy emphasized that approval of local applications for PWA funds for schools, sewers, waterworks, etc. should not be delayed because of the pending Wisconsin hydro application. The fact that Duffy for the first time definitely supported the project after his talks with the president was interpreted here as indication that he learned during his Washington visit that there is a good chance for the project to be approved.

Three. Several states and many municipalities are withdrawing earlier applications or rejecting proffered grants, and thus many states may not absorb their tentative and unofficial quotas. This will leave more money for states which have pushed through all PWA divisions their applications for projects considered meritorious.

Unions Satisfied
It is also understood that building trades unions are satisfied with the proposal of Governor LaFollette in his telegram Saturday to Ickes, and with Ickes's reply to the governor and his statement to the press Thursday.

It was further pointed out here that if all Madison's pending applications should be granted, in addition to the large grants for state and local projects in Madison already approved, there would not be enough building labor to do the work within PWA's deadlines for commencement and completion. In some other Wisconsin cities, there might not be a shortage of building labor if all qualified pending projects were approved.

Green Bay has been granted $313,880. Appleton, which might be expected to benefit from the Wisconsin hydro project, has received nothing in PWA grants out of this program. LaCrosse has received $152,182.

Hits at Delay
Meanwhile, Madison's Mayor Law has protested against delay of municipal applications because of the pending state hydro development application, citing the fact that applications for 45 percent grants for Madison and Dane county structures estimated to cost $3,500,000 still are pending before PWA.

Ickes probably will not reach final decision on the Wisconsin hydro application until he is certain whether 39 other states, not yet up to the quota, will absorb all the funds reserved for them.

It is believed here that his order to grant funds for local projects, pending decision on the state's water and land development program, resulted from a White House suggestion following Sen. Duffy's visit with the president last week-end. Such political advantage as may be gained is still considered evenly divided between Gov. LaFollette and Sen. Duffy, however, as the governor made the same suggestion Duffy made.

Some wise observers here, believe that there is no political advantage to be gained by standing definitely on either side of the controversy between the smaller local projects and the big state river program.

Teachers' Tenure Law Facing Test In Supreme Court

before the 7,000-word telephone case decisions will be completed by the printers.

Also before the court are two Milwaukee cases. The first concerns the inheritance taxes of the estate of the late Lucius W. Nieman, founder and publisher of the Milwaukee Journal, and the second an appeal by Gunnar Mickelsen, state CIO official, who was denied citizenship by Circuit Judge John J. Gregory, Milwaukee.

Nieman estate heirs are appealing from the decision of County Judge Michael S. Sheridan, Milwaukee, who ruled the Wisconsin Tax commission could assess state inheritance taxes before deductions are made for federal assessments. Another point contested by the heirs is the valuation of $4,500 a share of Milwaukee Journal stock which was sold for $3,500 a share. In both instances the appellants claim they are being taxed for money they have never received.

The tax commission holds previous supreme court rulings affirm the trial court's decision. The federal tax on the estate, valued at approximately $8,000,000, is about $2,000,000. If the commission is upheld in taxing the estate before the federal deduction is made, it stands to retain approximately $450,000, the commission said. Judge Sheridan set the state tax at $1,358,005.

Attorney A. W. Richter, of Milwaukee, is perfecting Mickelsen's appeal. The United States district attorney's office is respondent in the suit.

Candidate Steams Around State in Locomotive-Auto

C. L. "Dad" Miller, Madison, Republican candidate for nomination as governor, steamed into Appleton this morning in his locomotive-auto but the inclement weather prevented any speech making. Miller expects to travel about 4,000 miles during his campaign tour in the multi-colored "40 and 8" engine.

The candidate, who has been a life insurance counselor for over 20 years, says he has no need for an amplifying system for his unusual conveyance attracts crowds and the tender makes an excellent platform.

This Week Marks Turning Point in Trend of Business

Babson Outlines Factors Shaping General Eco- nomic Improvement

BY ROGER BABSON
Babson Park, Mass. — This is a big week. It marks a definite turning point. Now begins the business new year. In view of the strength which business is developing, we ought to ring bells, blow horns, and put on a real New Year's celebration.

Just compare the situation today with conditions a year ago! Last September — although few realized it at the time — business was pushing off on a sharp toboggan ride. Today we are fortunate in facing exactly the opposite situation. Business is in a powerful elevator sweeping upward to higher levels. My prediction is that the 1938 trend on its way up will pass the 1937 level on its way down sometime before Thanksgiving.

Everyone Not Bullish
Yet I find that my optimism is not shared by everyone. Many people fear that the current improvement is more campaign window-dressing than business upswing. Others refuse even to recognize that there has been an advance in activity this summer. Members of the latter group keep asking me: "Where do you get your figures? My business is no better!" Hence, I want to give readers some definite facts.

Figures usually make such dull reading that I avoid them whenever possible. The following facts are so cheerful, however, that everyone should glance them over:

Heavy Industries: Steel operations — at 44 per cent of capacity — up 100 per cent from the June low. August machine tool orders 50 per cent above July. Railroad equipment showing signs of life for first time in a year and a half.

Building: Running 5 to 10 per cent above year-ago level. Recent week was best in seven years at this season. Private construction doing its part in this improvement.

Banking: Deposits only 10 per cent below 1937 level. Deposits up $2,000,000,000 since New Year's. Loans to business reviving. Business failures falling.

Prices: Security prices up 40 per cent from lows. Commodity prices climbing. Retail prices 8 per cent below last September and holding steady.

Light Industries: Textile activity 33 per cent above three months ago. Shoe output has jumped 50 per cent since spring. Lumber cut up 30 per cent more than normal since Easter.

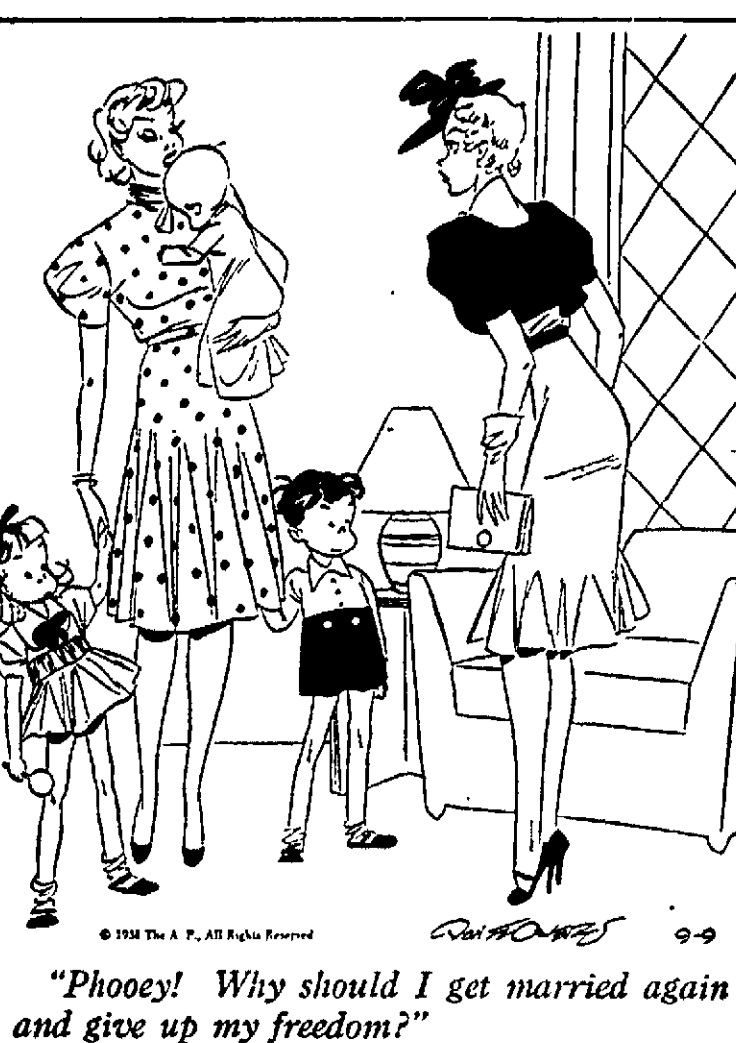

Other Barometers: Weekly car-loadings up 100,000 cars, or 20 per cent, since Memorial day. Power consumption 10 per cent above June low. Auto retail sales prospects for September most hopeful in a year.

Upswing a "Natural"
After reading these figures — based on actual statistics on my desk — can anyone doubt that the upswing is real? Putting these facts all together in my Babson-chart Index, I find general business is 11 per cent higher than on June 1. Many people insist that public spending is the sole reason why business is better. I do not agree. I think that the improvement is due to natural causes. During April, May, and June, less goods were being produced than were being sold and consumed. Production had to start up and it was purely coincidence that the turn came just as the WPA and PWA faucets were opened.

From now on, however, public spending will be one of the strong influences on business. Between now and February first a torrent of dollars — nearly three billion of them — will pour out of the U. S. Treasury. Every thirty days now for the next five months Uncle Sam will hand out half a billion dollars in another spectacular attempt to spend the nation back to prosperity. Such a huge stream of dollars will have a powerful effect on trade and industry this fall.

Farmer's Dollar Buys More
There are other factors that will give business a real impetus in the months ahead. Cash receipts from bountiful crops is an important one. I estimate that farm buying power will be off only about 10 per cent from a year ago despite the heartbreaking crash in farm prices. We are having bumper harvests. Those extra bushels of wheat, bales of cotton, and pounds of butter will help to offset lower prices. Also the dollars they bring in will purchase more goods today than they would have purchased a year ago. The farmer's 1938 dollar will buy as much as $1.06 would have bought in 1937.

Another bullish factor is more money for wage earners. Rising industrial activity has already lifted the buying power of mill towns and factory cities. I estimate that $25,000,000 more per week is now flowing into pay envelopes than three months ago. Much of this money is being used to clear up back bills, but it will soon be flowing into new sales. Retail trade right now is less than 10 per cent below a year ago in dollar volume, while in unit volume it is running along stride-for-stride with last Labor day.

Heavy Retail Trade Expected
Hence, I am bullish on business in general and retail trade in particular for this fall. Prices of goods are attractive and people will have

Legion Post Will Induct Officers

Joseph Mollen to Assume Duties as Commander At Little Chute

Little Chute — Installation of the newly elected officers of the Jacob Coppus post of the American Legion will take place at a meeting to be held Wednesday evening at the legion hall. This meeting was postponed from Monday evening because of the firmament's meeting. John Hansel of Appleton will be the installing officer. After the business meeting cards will be played and a lunch will be served.

The officers to be installed are: Joseph Mollen, post commander; John Hermesen, first vice commander; William Reybrook, second vice commander; Arthur Pennings, adjutant; George P. Hammen, service officer; Frank Hermesen, finance officer; Charles Coppus, sergeant-at-arms; Albert Jansen, John Evers, Martin Evers, Matthew Reynebeau and Arnold Strick, executive committee; Raymond Reider, chaplain.

Mrs. Adolph Anderson dislocated her elbow Monday. The accident occurred while she was horseback riding at Lake Shawano.

Mrs. Henry Lucasen and daughter Frances have returned home from a week's visit with relatives in Detroit and Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Herbert Driesen, Lloyd and Eleanor Lucasen spent Sunday and Monday in Detroit and made the return trip with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Randerson have returned home after a vacation at Lake Shawano.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sol and Mrs. Lawrence Sol returned home Thursday from a several days' visit with relatives in Milwaukee and Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schumacher are spending a few days in Menominee with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Rock and son Billy spent Saturday and Sunday at the Dells of the Wisconsin.

the cash to buy them. Aggressive merchants should have one of the best Autumns on record. Salesmen should have an opportunity to make up for the lean months of the spring. Newspapers should see a real spurt in their advertising lineage. Wage-workers can expect a fuller week's work. Salary workers need fear no further pay cuts. Security-holders should see the prices of selected issues steady to higher. Investors should receive more generous dividend payments later this fall.

So my advice is: Get busy and make the most of the opportunities ahead!

Pegler Cold About This Cultural Debt Business

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York — Another twinge in the neck incidental to all discussions of this country's relations with other peoples is the recurrent bushwag about America's debt to this or that race or nation for its contributions to American literature, science and art.

This country doesn't owe any race or nation anything for any such contributions. Those which we have received and put to use have been paid for, and more, by American inventions, and many others which are talked up so highly were unsuitable to our nature and have been kicking around in the drawer like so many initialed belt buckles.

Moreover, those which we did receive, such as Shakespeare and the radio, our laws and liberties, were not intended as altruistic contributions to us any more than the electric light, the telephone and telegraph were intended as contributions to the peoples of foreign lands. We took something from them. They got more in return.

You walk down the street today and ask a thousand people to identify Giuseppe Verdi and tell you something he did or hum you a bar thereof, and not more than eight will even know what you are talking about. A slightly higher proportion may be able to remember having heard of Dante and a book with a lot of hell-fire illustrations, but in the main this country favors home-talent music and poetry.

Our songs are the Stephen Foster songs, plus "The Banks of the Wabash" and the songs of Irving Berlin, and that school. Our favorite poetry is home grown, and even if our best artists have gone abroad to study they are not our favorite artists, as our best artists often observe with a trace of pique.

Even our profanity is so distinctly native that Rudyard Kipling, who had messed with British Tommies recruiting from the slums of London, was fascinated by the shocking force and originality of a phrase which he heard on the docks in Seattle.

And just as a rap on the knuckles of anyone who here attempts to reach out and claim the works of Irving Berlin as a Jewish contribution to American art let it be understood that there is a catch in such claims. Berlin is an American who does his stuff as an American, and anyone who claims his works as Jewish works must be prepared to accept the works of Dixie Davis as Jewish works, too.

Immigrants Came Over To Escape Native Lands

Similarly, if the creditable works of Americans of Italian or German, Irish or whatever other birth or descent be claimed as contributions by the homeland to American civilization, then the discreditable acts of others of the same birth or strain must be accepted, too.

That I couldn't be so hot. In fact, whenever anyone takes some foreign-minded, hands-across-the-sea American at his word and offer to award full credit for all achievements, the bad as well as the good, which stand against the names of members of any particular group, the answer to that is a shrill, piercing scream of outrage. The bad works are always the result of bad American environment and are to be charged against the individual miscreants as Americans. But the good works are foreign or racial contributions to American literature, science and art.

With no exceptions worth considering, all our immigrants came to the United States with no high-minded intention to contribute anything but merely to escape the degradation, poverty, wars, plagues and oppression of their native countries. They and their descendants have made contributions, if you want to use a noble word inconsistent with the individual, personally ambitious motives which impelled them. But they contributed.

By The Process U. S. Never Gets any Credit

They were, they are Americans, and they wrought in the same environment which is always offered as the excuse for bad conduct by

By this process the United States gets no credit for anything good produced by European refugees and their descendants, but full blame for everything for which there is reason to be ashamed. As though there never were any slums, ignorance or criminality in the old world.

There is too much accent on Shakespeare, too, as a contribution to the American something, when the fact is that an all-American named Gene Tunney was hooded in the streets as a pretentious intellectual for boasting that he had dipped his bill into one of the Henrys and contrary to American experience, hadn't gagged on the first line.

APPLETON, WISCONSIN, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1938

Manawa Water Frolic Sunday

Speed Boat Races, Boxing Matches, Seaplane Flights to Feature

MANAWA—Speed boat races with pilots from all over central Wisconsin competing, a three-bout boxing card in which widely known fighters from this area will take part, the first appearance in this section of a seaplane which will give demonstrations and make passenger flights, and a dance in the evening as a fitting climax are among the important features planned for the fourth annual Water Frolic at Bear Lake, Sunday afternoon and evening, Sept. 11. The event is sponsored by the Manawa Lions club. Bear Lake is located three miles south of Manawa on highway 22 just a few rods north of highway 54.

Five speed boat races will be run, including two heats in Class B and the free-for-all in Class A drivers are Al Stimp, Harry Thomack, Elmer Smith, Bill Voss, and Elmer Grode. Entries in class C include Curt Smith, Ray Eichinger, Clyde Buxton, John Kohanick, Ike Chandler, Dick Hansen, Bud Bretthauer, Floyd Brickell, Elmer Grode, and Dick Reimer. Drivers in the free-for-all or Class F race will be L. Smitzer, John Kohanick, Bud Bretthauer, Dick Hansen, Clyde Buxton, Dick Reimer, Ray Eichinger, Floyd Brickell, Elmer Grode, Curt Smith, and Ike Chandler.

Three boxing matches are brought here by Windy Thomack, a well-known around New London, Big Falls, and the Fox river valley for his feats in the ring. The first bout on the card will match a pair of 85-pound midgets in Buck Kreiger of Big Falls and Battling Tom Schider of Little Wolf. Al Robbins of Oshkosh will meet in the semi-windup at 135 pounds. In the windup Windy Thomack, the pride of Big Falls, will match punches with Kiler Mulroy, Oshkosh, at 147 pounds. Frank Cheek of Stevens Point will be the referee.

Flights by a seaplane brought to this section for the first time by Harold Grandy of Three Lakes will attract interest. Demonstrations will be made and commercial flights with passengers can be arranged. Grandy, a graduate of Manawa High school, has been a licensed pilot for the past ten years. Herman Schmitt, his Dutch Boy, will furnish music for the dance in the pavilion in the evening. There will be concessions of all kinds.

Louisville Will Be Red Sox Farm

Donie Bush Will Be Manager of Colonels During 1939 Season

BOSTON—The Boston Red Sox today added the Louisville club of the American association to their rapidly expanding farm system with Donie Bush, former major league manager, and Frank McKinney, an Indianapolis banker, as part owners.

Eddie Collins, general manager of the Sox, said Bush, manager of the Minneapolis Millers, and McKinney, president of the Fidelity Trust company of Indianapolis, put up a considerable part of the unannounced purchase price with Tom Yawkey, millionaire owner of the Boston club.

Bush will complete the season with the Millers, then become manager of the Colonels.

All real estate, the club's franchise, and all players, including Harold (Pee Wee) Reese, shortstop for whom several major league clubs had offered sums ranging up to $400,000, were taken over by the new owners.

Jordan Gridders Drill at Shawano

Mentors Satisfied With 1938 Prospects for College Squad

SHAWANO—Jordan college's coaching staff, having observed workouts of gridiron candidates at the Shalagoco Country club here for the past three days, seems well satisfied with 1938 prospects.

The entire squad moved up to the Jordan campus today. From now until the opening tilt, with St. John's at Collegeville, Minn., Sept. 15, drills will be conducted daily.

Eddie Wagner, star quarterback of last year has returned, much improved. Another threat will be Jack Gilmore, giant colored star from Beloit, who made the Big Eight all-conference squad four straight years. He stands six feet one, and weighs 210.

From West De Pere has come Bill Heesaker, only a 175-pounder but a flashy defensive back. Don Robbins, who graduated from Shawano high a year ago, probably will see action at tackle or full.

Others returning are Jack Diamond, West De Pere; Red Thompson, Beloit; Iggy Pulaski, New London; Erney Baumgartner, Shawano; and Emil Petrik, Oconto Falls.

Yankees 11 Wins From Pennant; Beat Boston Sox

Gomez Hangs Up 16th Victory; Lefty Grove Works 2 Innings

BOSTON—(AP)—The Yankees moved to within 11 "wins" of their third straight American league pennant yesterday by blanking the Boston Red Sox 4 to 0 behind the five-fit pitching of Lefty Gomez.

Gomez, chalking up his sixteenth victory and fourth shutout of the year, gave up no more than one hit in any one inning. The only bright spot for the Sox during the afternoon came with the return to action of Lefty Grove, making his first appearance since his arm went dead a month ago for the second time this season.

Gordon Clouts 22nd Grove was summoned at the start of the eighth, after Bill (Hard Luck) Harris had been lifted for a pinch-hitter, and gave up only one hit and one run in the two frames he worked. The run, however, wasn't his fault, resulting from Ben Chapman's three-base miff of a fly ball in the eighth.

The Yankees collected only eight hits off Harris and Grove, but one of these—Rookie Joe Gordon's twenty-second homer of the year, in the third inning—was enough to win the ball game. Lou Gehrig drove two more runs across with a timely single in the sixth, and Chapman's error and an infield grounder produced the final New York marker in the eighth.

Now 14 Games Ahead The victory boosted the Yankees 14 games in front of the Sox and Cleveland Indians and left them with a record of 90 wins and 41 losses for the year. The Sox and Indians can now win only 100 games each in what is left of the schedule. So 11 victories for the Yankees, or a combination of Yankee wins and second-place losses, to make up a total of 11, will clinch the flag for Gehrig and co.

Only 18 of about 175 bouts were lost by Zwick during his tours, and some of his victims rank high in wrestling circles. While abroad he took the measure of John McGroarty, featherweight champion of the British empire, James Walsh, welterweight boss of the same territory, and Boyo Reese, lightweight king of Wales. In most of his fights he spotted the enemy poundage, several times fighting out of his class.

Others who went down before the Kaukauna man were Spike Robinson, Irish featherweight titleholder, Ernest Wohrer, Austrian lightweight champ, and Herb Bishop and Alf Bloch, top ranking Australian lightweights. Only Walsh of all the fighters went the distance, 12 rounds, against Zwick.

Four Teams Gain Favor In Softball Tournament

CHICAGO—(AP)—Four teams went into second-round play in the international softball tournament today strongly backed to succeed to the championship.

On the basis of their showings in first round games, three—Pittsburgh, Calif.; Denver, Colo., and Chicago—had drawn contingents of rooters. The fourth, Toronto, Canada, was "tipped" by the grandstand managers as a contender although it gained the second round through a forfeit yesterday.

Pittsburgh gathered its support from the no-hit pitching performance of Harry Gowan as he set down the Pittsburgh, Pa., entry, 6 to 0. Denver beat the champions of 1937, Rochester, N. Y., 5 to 1 while Chicago eliminated the defending champion Detroit team in the tournament's curtain raiser Wednesday night, 1 to 0, in 16 innings.

Dutchmen Will Report Sunday

Little Chute Gridders Have Scheduled Several Games

LITTLE CHUTE—The Flying Dutchman football squad will report at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning at the municipal park here, it has been reported by Coach Greg Hartjes. The workout will end at 11:30 giving the Dutchmen a chance to go to Green Bay for the Packers-Cleveland game.

Floodlights have been installed at the park and the first night drill will be held at 7:30 Tuesday evening. There are five big lights at one end of the grid and they will permit scrimmage sessions.

The Dutchmen are scheduling games as fast as favorable dates can be arranged. Eight games are listed with a booster game being scheduled on Oct. 2 when the Clintonville Four Wheel Drive team will show here. It will be the only game in this section that day.

Two night games are being carded, one with Clintonville there and the other with the Merrill Fromm Foxes. On Sept. 25 the Appleton Reds will play at Little Chute and on Oct. 9, the Dutchmen will show at Appleton. An opening game for Sept. 18 is in the making. If the squad being sought can't show, the Dutchmen will take on Manitowish there and play the lake shore team at Little Chute on Nov. 13. The Oct. 30 date is being kept open for Kaukauna. The possibility of midweek games under lights at Kimberly also is being discussed.

The Dutchmen will sport new white jerseys with purple stripes and white head guards. The team is under the sponsorship of the Little Chute Athletic association with the Kaukauna Electric City Brewing company contributing.

New Grid Mentor Named At Waukesha High School

WAUKESHA—(AP)—Clifford Goerke, former Carroll college star halfback, last night was appointed head football coach at Waukesha High school. Goerke, who is 29, succeeds Lee Saubert. The latter remains as athletic director and basketball coach.

Goerke is beginning his second year at Waukesha. He was athletic director and head coach at Oconto Falls for six years after graduating from the Waukesha college in 1931.

Oshkosh All-Stars Will Play Games in Larger Gymnasium

OSHKOSH—(AP)—Definite arrangements for greater spectator accommodations, plus an initial step toward incorporation of the Oshkosh All-Stars, gave definite assurance today that Oshkosh will remain a member of the National Basketball league this year.

Members of the board of education Thursday night approved plans and prepared to ask for bids on additional seats for the Merrill Junior High school gymnasium, where All-Star games will be played this year. The Merrill gym will seat about 2,500, almost double the capacity of the recreational gym, where the All-Stars formerly played.

Manager Lonnie Darling announced that preliminary steps were taken to incorporate under the name of Oshkosh All-Stars, Inc. Last year, their first in the league, the All-Stars won the western division championship.

Fox River Valley Athletes To See Action With Badger Grid Squad During Season

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
MADISON—When the University of Wisconsin's promising grid squad of 54 Big Ten conference gridgers trots out onto the Camp Randall practice field for the first time this season Saturday, the roster will include a substantial group of boys who once showed their wares in Fox River Valley and Northwestern Wisconsin conference play.

And that fact gratifies Wisconsin's chief grid mentor, and the No. 1 man in state college football, Coach Harry Stuhldreher. For it shows, he observes, that a trend which was evident in recent years, the apparent unwillingness of the best athletes in valley schools to come to the state university to continue their careers, is passing.

"We're glad," he said yesterday, "that whatever the reasons were are beginning to disappear, and that Fox river valley boys are coming back here," he said in discussing the prospective contributions of northeastern Wisconsin men to the strength which will be called for in Wisconsin's stiff eight game schedule this year.

Team To Be Better Stuhldreher, while he isn't willing to predict a championship this year, is perfectly willing to challenge anyone who doesn't think Wisconsin's squad will be harder to beat this year than it was last year. As he puts it, "We are better, but so is everybody else."

Discussing the possibilities of the Fox river valley timber on his roster this year, Stuhldreher places robust Ed Weigandt of Oshkosh at the top. Weigandt is never played in valley football, for he never played in high school, confining himself to basketball. Two years ago he asked Stuhldreher for permission to report. Now the chief classes him as "outstanding" and Weigandt has won himself a regular berth at right end. A senior, five feet 10, and weighing 186 pounds, he has shown "tremendous improvement" in spring rehearsals, says the coach. Stated for a regular tackle job this fall is Gene Brodgen of Bonduel, who also came out of high school as a mediocre player and has since convinced university mentors of his ability. "Extremely willing," Stuhldreher says of him. He got some experience with the varsity two years ago, and stepped into a regular place last year. Standing more than six feet, and weighing 204 pounds, Brodgen is one of the huskiest of the tackles available to Stuhldreher this season.

Natural Football Player A natural football player, according to Stuhldreher, who as 1924 pilot of the famous Four Horsemen of Notre Dame ought to know, is Fred Gage of Green Bay, who as a freshman last year was a stand-out quarterback on several occasions. Now weighing 208, he is one of the most promising youngsters of the lot, according to local opinion.

Stuhldreher appears to be enthusiastic about the future of Gage. "He is an up and coming candidate, as the result of his physical foundation, and his intuition for football, although he has not yet been seen in actual varsity play," he remarks.

Next to Gage, the coach is also confident of a bright athletic future for Elmer Tornow, also a Green Bay product who has been playing right tackle with the freshmen. Similarly unknown to conference competition, he has shown what is common to all youngsters who have grown rapidly, a difficulty in coordination which is especially true of the best football athlete. But says the coach, he will improve, especially since he is determined and readily repairs his mistakes and shows a diligent application to his job.

U. S. Women Keep Curtis Golf Cup Manchester, Mass.—(AP)—By capturing five of six singles matches for a 54 to 34 victory over brilliant British rivals, the American women's golf team today retained that international trophy, the Curtis cup.

The surprising rally of the domestic golfers shattered a dominating lead the invaders had taken earlier in the match and gave the Americans their third triumph since the cup was donated eight years ago by the Misses Harriot and Margaret Curtis, both former national titleists.

The nearest the British women have ever come to carrying off the cup was two years ago when in the third of the biennial matches they forced the American team to a 44-41 deadlock. The draw, however, entitled the American women to retain the trophy.

Manager Lonnie Darling announced that preliminary steps were taken to incorporate under the name of Oshkosh All-Stars, Inc. Last year, their first in the league, the All-Stars won the western division championship.

Isbell and Uram Ready for Action In Opening Game

Former College Stars to Make Debut With Packers Against Cleveland

GREEN BAY—With Cecil Isbell of Purdue, and Andy Uram of Minnesota, latest additions to the squad, all set for action, the Green Bay Packers are on the threshold of their twentieth professional football campaign.

The Packers embark on their 1938 title drive Sunday in a National Professional Football League game against the Cleveland Rams. The contest will start at 2 o'clock at City stadium here.

Cleveland, in its second year as a member of the league, boasts the pick of this year's rookie crop in Corbett Davis, Indiana fullback, Vic Markov, Washington tackle, Jim McDonald, Ohio State back, Vince Regazzo, Western Reserve tackle, and a host of others.

Coach Curly Lambeau and the Packers returned Monday night from Ironwood, Mich., where they won an exhibition game by 75 to 0, and resumed drills Monday. A heavy rain forced them indoors, but there was no interruption in the practice sessions.

The first Green Bay squad cut of the year was made this week with six recruits getting the ax. They were Ed Brett, Washington State end; Gil Hunt, Bradley Tech center; Richard Anderson, Iowa center; Red Chapman, Tulsa tackle; Frank Barnhart, Greeley State guard, and Dick Beauregard, Gonzaga halfback. The league allows only 30 players for the official season's roster.

Much of the added space in Green Bay's enlarged stadium, which now seats 25,000, will be taken up for Sunday's game. Advanced ticket sales for the opener have far surpassed expectations.

"Red" Dawson's Question Box. By LOWELL (RED) DAWSON

QUESTION: What constitutes a "quick kick"? Answer: A punt is considered a "quick kick" when the ball is kicked from a close up position, usually about five yards behind the line of scrimmage. The element of surprise is its greatest advantage, hence it usually is executed on an early down, the idea being to kick over the safety man's head. (Copyright, 1938.)

COMMON SENSE CONSERVATION

By L.H. KINGSTON

GREEN BAY—A good system of deer refuges in Wisconsin is perhaps the best possible insurance we can provide for the future welfare of our deer and since an increasing deer population means a continuation of our present yearly deer hunting season, sportsmen are unanimously in favor of the refuge system as a whole.

There are areas in the state deer refuge system, however, that hunters believe serve no useful purpose and should have been left open to hunting, while on the other hand the Conservation Department has attempted to discontinue the use of some of the older refuge areas only to meet with determined opposition from local interests.

Such controversies give rise to the question: What are the important requirements of a good deer refuge? Following are listed, according to importance, the points I believe most important to consider when a deer refuge is to be established.

1. Location—Refuges should be located only within large tracts of deer country open to the public for deer hunting. The whole theory of the deer refuge is that its overflow deer population shall supply surrounding open territory with legal bucks for the guns. An isolated refuge serves no useful purpose.

2. Winter Feed—The number of deer any refuge can harbor is in direct proportion to the amount of cedar, hemlock and other browse available in the winter. This means that any refuge must have plenty of cedar swamps, hemlock thickets and underbrush. When a deer refuge has been heavily populated for a number of years and it becomes overbrowsed then it should be abandoned and a new area set aside. Five to ten years is about the average life of a well stocked refuge, depending on local conditions.

3. Size—The size of a refuge is important; obviously it should not be too small but on the other hand oversize is a waste of none too abundant hunting territory. If a refuge is so large that the deer in the center area never wander out-

Projects May Transform Indian Reservation Into Paradise for Sportsmen

BY JIM STRAUDEL Green Bay Press-Gazette KESHENA — A vast slice of recreational territory, the Menominee Indian reservation, after years of being closed to all but tribal members, may again be open to white sportsmen.

Among the projects under consideration by Ralph Fredenberg, Indian agent at the reservation, acting for the tribe, are facilities to accommodate fishermen, training quarters for professional football teams, and summer camps affiliated with outside organizations or schools.

With development of the program 233,000 acres in the heart of northern Wisconsin, boasting about one billion feet of timber, including extensive virgin growth, and 62 lakes almost unknown to white men would be thrown open, under certain qualifications, for recreational purposes.

Better Than Canada Original plans center about a number of outstanding sportsmen in the middle west, it is understood, who have already expressed their interest in the project. These men, according to information received, have for past few years been entering Canada and British Columbia for trout fishing, and after studying the facilities available on the reservation, are seriously considering this territory for fishing rather than the districts farther north.

The entire plan, which has not yet been definitely formulated, has

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

AS THE BALL SPINS The spin applied to the golf ball at impact is what actually keeps it travelling straighter and with better control. Former smooth covered balls were known to dart here and there in their flight, until some observant person noticed that the nicked ones traveled better and started the meshed and dimpled era. This sort of cover allows the blade of the club a better contact and insures a greater spin.

In contrast consider the ball hit from wet clover and notice how hard it is to control. Here the clubface has a difficult time applying spin because the moisture and juice of the crushed plant form a film between the two. The greater the loft of the club, in ratio to the power imparted, the greater the spin.

On the well watered greens so prevalent in this country, it is no great feat to hit straight forward shots with enough spin on them to hold the green, once they land near it. For quick rising shots the loft of the club can be increased by laying the face back. To apply the greatest amount of actual spin however it is necessary to hit down on the ball contacting it before the ground, the clubhead following down through and taking a divot in the turf afterward. This applies the back spin to the ball.

Vines Says Budge Is In No Hurry to Join Pro Tennis Circuit

Oakmont, Pa. — (7) — Ellsworth Vines, the tennis star who proved himself better than a dub at golf by qualifying for the national amateur, said today Don Budge is in no hurry about joining the pro net ranks.

"Budge is interested in those professional offers," he said during a luncheon intermission from the links, "but he feels there is no hurry about accepting them."

"I know Budge well, and he thinks if he can get $50,000 or $75,000 now he can still get it next year. The way amateur tennis is now he doesn't feel there is anybody that can beat him and I guess he's probably right."

"Bobby Riggs would come near to beating him, I expect, but that's not likely to happen just yet."

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

In this day even the best of merchandise requires an aggressive advertising campaign and a good sales manager in order to be sold. Be sure to read how this principle applies to religion.

CASE L-117: Today I wish to tell you how modern advertising produced a champion athlete in the Big Ten.

The great track coach at Michigan, Charley Hoyt, believes in advertising, so he inserted the following ad in the school paper:

"HELP WANTED" — Male—Students with good throwing arms to hurl the javelin. Apply to Charles B. Hoyt, track coach, at Ferry Field.

Three years previously, one of the students, Fred Martin, had aspirations to make the baseball team, but had failed in this quest. But he still believed he had a good right arm.

So his attention was caught by the advertisement for javelin throwers, and immediately he went over to see the track coach. He tried out, and that same year placed second in the Big Ten meet with a toss of over 182 feet.

And now he is well over the 200 mark, which is real throwing. I speak advisedly, for this was my event in college track.

Use Modern Methods

Today's case is a good example for many other track coaches to imitate. It shows, moreover, that men who reach the top in their respective fields, are usually resourceful.

Nor do they timidly stand around waiting for somebody else to try a good idea first. If they see its merit, they act, even though they may be doing something very original.

Too many people in this world are like sheep. They are afraid to try anything out of the ordinary.

And being afraid to try new things, they inhibit the habit of even thinking new ideas. They live within a circumscribed area of what has already been done.

Advertising is a great aid not only to business, but to many other fields of human activity. The churches, for example, could profitably employ more constructive advertising than they are now doing.

Advertising in Religion

If the church is purveying good merchandise, then it should launch a more aggressive promotional campaign. I do not wish to appear sacrilegious in comparing a great institution like the church to our modern business firms.

But I feel that every legitimate device of modern scientific laboratories should be employed for constructive sales promotional purposes.

If, as is true, over 65,000,000 Americans belong to no church, then here is a big market for religion. If the merchandise is topnotch, as I admit it is, then why isn't it being used by this 50% of our people?

Is it because of poor advertising, poor distribution, etc? Do you know how an advertising department of a progressive firm would tackle the church problem?

Well, here's how! It would immediately institute a consumer survey, probably following the methods of our political parties. They use the "block system" in the cities, farming out a city block to a precinct worker.

This worker takes an inventory of all residents in his block, or if in the country, in his section. Every church member and non-member would be tabulated. The members are already considered "customers" of the church.

If he finds any who aren't active customers, then an aggressive campaign would be launched to pep up their enthusiasm. If they haven't sampled his wares, then he would try to tempt them to conduct a trial test.

He'll bombard them with sales talks or printed advertising. He might use neon signs and the radio, newspaper ads, etc. Send me a long, self-addressed envelope with the postage thereon if you wish my bulletin on "The psychology of religious education." Every church member needs a copy.

(Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, care of the Post-Crescent, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.)

Cross-Ruff Scheme May Defeat Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Whenever a cross-ruff plan is contemplated, it is vital to look a few tricks ahead and note whether it will be possible to communicate from one hand to the other. Many players take entirely too short a view of this situation, i. e., they start out with a cross-ruff in mind and actually succeed in ruffing one or two losers, only to end against a blank wall when their lines of communication are suddenly broken. Declarer, in today's hand, thought that he was making safety play. Actually, he ruined his best chance.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 diamond Double 1 heart 1 spade
2 hearts 2 spades Pass Pass
3 hearts Pass Pass 3 spades
4 hearts Double Pass Pass
Redouble Pass Pass Pass

Obviously, North's bidding was aggressive, but after a diamond deal by South, North felt that a four heart contract would be very hard to beat. He was right, but overlooked the fact that his partner was not an expert on play.

West opened the spade jack, dummy's king won, and declarer, to make sure of losing only one diamond trick, took an immediate diamond discard on the spade ace.

He then cashed the club ace, and ruffed a spade, after which he ruffed a low club in dummy. Only after the fatal play had been made did he awaken to the fact that he couldn't enter his hand for another club ruff. He led a diamond and East hopped right up with the ace and banged down the ace, king, and the low heart. Now, dummy's last trump removed, declarer couldn't ruff out his club suit, and even though he found a 4-3 break in the suit, had to concede a club for the setting trick.

It should have been apparent to declarer that a cross-ruff plan would not succeed unless the heart suit broke two-and the club suit broke three-and. These breaks were certainly not to be expected. It was a great deal more probable that the diamond ace was in front of the king; in fact, this was a near certainty, since East had first doubled for a take-out and later had made a penalty double. Thus, the spade king should not have been used for a worthless diamond discard. Instead, declarer, after winning the first trick in dummy, should have led a diamond toward his king.

East would win with the ace and return three rounds of trumps, but note the different position declarer now would have. Winning the third lead, he would cash the diamond king, enter dummy with a club, and ruff a third round of diamonds. This would establish two long diamonds for club discards and, of course, the rest of the play would be a laydown.

ANNOUNCING AN ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to announce my daughter's engagement soon and want to know the exact form for the engraved announcement. And if we should decide to announce it at a party, what kind do you suggest?

Answer: According to etiquette, engraved announcements of an engagement are tabu! Correctly, an engagement is announced in one of three ways. The girl writes to her best friends and the man writes to his best friends and these in turn spread the news. Or perhaps they announce it either at a party or in the society column of the paper.

When announced in the paper, the wording is always this: "Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Brown of Pleasant Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Brown, to Mr. Henry White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert White of Center Avenue." Then either "no date has been set for the wedding" or "the marriage will take place in October." If the Browns are people of social importance, the society editor will send a reporter to ask for a picture of the bride and for whatever other details the editor may desire.

Old Gardener Says:

The gas plant, Dictamnus fraxinella, is to be left alone even when the border is being made over. It heartily resents being moved, but does not dislike a little feeding from time to time. Probably the Christmas rose is outside the perennial border, but it may not be. In any event, it, too, does not care to be disturbed and receives a serious setback when plants may be carefully lifted with plenty of earth on the roots and flowered in a cold-frame or even in the house, afterward being returned to their places in the garden. If one desires an abundance of bloom, it is best to grow the plants in a frame where they can be protected by sash.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME

Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

in a buttered baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven 20 to 30 minutes.

1 package lemon 1 can crushed pineapple
2 packages cream 1 small can cheese
1 cup celery, cut 2-3 cup nuts, chop-fine
1 pint whipping Pinch of salt cream

Heat the pineapple juice, and pour over the jelly. Stir until dissolved and let stand until it begins to jell. Add the pineapple. Mix the pimentos with the cream cheese and add celery cut fine, salt and finely chopped nuts to the jelly mixture. Add the whipped cream, pour into refrigerator tray and freeze. Serve with boiled dressing.

Fruit butters scorch easily because they are so thick. Placing the container on an asbestos mat helps prevent scorching. The butter should be cooked rapidly so it will keep its bright color. Use a long-handled wooden spoon, of the slotted type, for stirring. Because boiling butter bubbles a great deal, it is safer to wrap your stirring arm in a dish cloth to avoid burns.

To remove mustard stains from washable fabrics merely wash the stained area in warm water and mild soap suds. Stains may be removed from non-washable fabrics by rubbing them gently as soon as possible with warm glycerine applied with a small sponge or cloth.

Mint gelatin mold topped with salad dressing or mayonnaise makes a tasty accompaniment for lamb, hot or cold. Make a regular mint gelatin, then when it is cool, add some sliced cucumbers, cooled celery and minced green peppers or pimientos.

Allow peaches, pears, apricots or plums to ripen at room temperature. Then store them, uncovered in a shallow tray or metal container in the refrigerator. Don't crowd the fruits. That's likely to bruise or soften them, causing quick decay.

Here's a simple way to wash windows. Dip a chamois skin into hot water and wring it quite dry. Rub it over the window quickly. Wait several minutes, then wipe the window with a clean, soft chamois skin.

Starch slip covers a little when you launder them. That will make them a little more glossy and give them more body. They'll keep clean longer. Never use bluing on colored or flowered slip covers.

Grated raw carrots give cabbage salad added color and flavor. Minced green peppers or pimientos will do the same for creamed potatoes, turnips, cauliflower, lima beans or corn.

Best Kind of Happiness Is the Homemade Variety

BY DOROTHY DIX

The very best brand of happiness is strictly a homemade product. Nothing that you can buy in the market places of the outside world has the sweetness, the flavor, the heartening and strengthening qualities of that which we brew on our own hearthstones.

To each of us the most important thing in our lives is our family relationship. Fame is as empty as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals if we have none of our own to rejoice in. Riches are counterfeit money that cannot buy what the heart craves most. A man's life work goes for nothing in the end if his children have no affection for him and regard him only as a cash register. You can have a thousand palaces and still be as homeless as any tramp unless there is some one to watch for your coming and draw you across the threshold of your dwelling with tender hands.

It does not matter how successful we are in our careers, how much wealth we pile up, how loudly the public applauds us, we are lonely and desolate if we have no one close to us who loves us, and miserable if our homes are places of turmoil and strife.

Nor does it matter how little we have nor how obscure we may be, we are happy if we find in our own households sympathy and understanding and companionship; if we know that whatever else fails, love and loyalty will not; if all the world turns against us, there will still be our families to which we can flee as to a rock of refuge.

Such being the case, and all of us knowing that our happiness and well being depend more upon our family relationship than upon anything else, it is a strange and stupid thing that we do in trusting this all-important matter to luck instead of using all the skill and intelligence we possess to cultivating and preserving it.

Take husbands and wives, for instance. The dumbest of them know that whether their marriage is a success or a failure depends upon their making themselves persona grata to each other. No man can be happy if he has a peevish, fretful, nagging wife. No woman can be happy if she has a surly, disgruntled, fault-finding husband. Nor can there be any happiness in a household where the husband and wife are in a perpetual fight.

But, knowing that the price of their quarrels is an unhappy home and, probably, a divorce, do the average married couple take the trouble to make their relationship to each other pleasant and agreeable? Not at all! The husband often doesn't treat his wife with even common politeness. He never pays her a compliment, or gives her any indication that he regards her as anything but a burden and an expense.

And the wife on her part makes no effort to make herself attractive to her husband, nor to interest him, nor to do anything that would make him glad he married her. And so, between them, they let the bond that should have been a silken one that bound them closer to each other as the years went by turn into a ball and chain that clanks as they walk.

The only reward that parents can get for the trouble, sacrifices and cost of rearing their children is in the love and honor that their children give them. But how seldom do you see fathers and mothers trying to sell themselves to their sons and daughters? They depend on what they call natural affection, which doesn't exist after a child can stand alone. After that parents must win their children's friendship by tenderness and understanding in the new justice; not alienate them, as so many fathers and mothers do by their petty tyrannies and continual fault-finding.

Then there is the in-law relationship, which can be turned into a blessing instead of the curse it usually is by the use of a little tact and common sense and upon the ability of a daughter-in-law and mother-in-law to see that their happiness is going to depend upon the way they treat each other.

One of the most beautiful and sustaining relationships in life is that of brothers and sisters who love each other with a devotion that goes back to the cradle and that is interwoven with all the precious memories of childhood. It is a love that does not criticize, that knows all your faults and loves you still, a love that you can call upon in time of trouble secure of help. And yet how many men and women throw away this treasure because they are too lazy to preserve it.

They drift apart without even a letter or a visit to keep them in touch with each other.

Queer, isn't it, that we go abroad seeking happiness when it is buried right under our own doorsteps.

Salvage Grain at Ruins of Elevator

Will be Used as Hog Feed;
Remains of Structure
To be Razed

New London — Work of salvaging the grain at the New London Farmer's Exchange burned elevator was completed today and razing of the structure will go forward immediately. No plans for the future will be announced by the directors until the loss has been determined and settled, according to B. M. Crain, manager.

Insurance adjusters have been at work since Monday's fire directing the salvaging of the grain. Practically the entire three carloads of grain was untouched by the flames and when emptied the inside of the bins showed no signs of the blaze. However, the grain was spoiled by smoke and water and is being taken by farmers for hog feed.

From a study of the ruins it has been concluded that the fire started under the grain bins in the southeast corner of the building, the flames feeding largely on the wooden structure itself surrounding the storage bins.

Price of Wheat Affected by War Crisis in Europe

Lowest in Five Years; Gold Hoarding Responsible, Lawrence Says

Washington — Every once in a while a conspicuous illustration develops to show how world-wide influences effect the domestic economic situation inside the United States. Today the experts are beginning to point to the low prices at which wheat is selling as being directly traceable to the hoarding of gold, which, in turn, makes wheat sell for less and less in terms of the precious metal.

Many American farmers have been taught to believe that world prices have little relationship to their prices because the government here will continue to furnish subsidies, but there comes a time when the world price is depressed to such an extent that subsidies cannot help much.

The price of wheat, notwithstanding frequent comments to the contrary, is, with the exception of the freight, the same at Chicago as at Liverpool. Hence, world factors are now influencing the wheat price for the American farmer even more drastically than they were when the world-wide depression was at its height.

Lowest Since 1933

Wheat has this week reached a price which is the lowest since April, 1933. Circumstances are different, however, than they were five years ago. There has been a tendency to ascribe part of the loss to the entry of the department of agriculture into the world market with a substantial quality of wheat to sell. It also is true that the uncertainty over the whole world situation, whether there will be peace or war in Europe, has cast over the commodity markets a cloud that is not readily dispelled. Gold has been gathered in from all parts of the world which may be affected by a possible war and has been sent to the United States for safekeeping. America offers a constant price of $35 an ounce no matter what the metal is worth on today, as the hoarding is on in full swing, gold is no doubt in great demand as a means of selling European securities or property abroad and

Republicans Plan Meeting Tonight

Waupaca County Group
Will Meet in Town
Hall of Harrison

Manawa — One of the few Republican rallies to be held in Waupaca county previous to the primaries is scheduled for the town hall in the town of Harrison at 8 o'clock Friday evening. The speaker of the evening will be District Attorney Paul E. Roman. Candidates for state and county offices will be introduced. There will be special music and short talks by widely-known local leaders. This meeting will be a rally of Republicans throughout the northwest section of Waupaca county and a crowd of several hundred people will attend.

Miss Jennie Lindsay was hostess at the opening meeting of the Manawa Woman's club for the 1938-1939 season. Mrs. Stewart Craig, Mrs. Robert Lindsay, and Mrs. L. M. Lamkins acted as a committee in charge of the tea at which Mrs. Ida Davids, the past president, poured roses, gladioli and typical fall flowers decorated the rooms. Twenty-one members were present.

Try to Avert War

The American government is keenly aware of these interrelationships, even though very little is said publicly about it by high officials. There can be no doubt that American diplomats abroad are doing everything in their power to help avert a war, but they are limited by the knowledge that in America a very substantial public opinion is against "meddling." And this has been taken to mean that no commitments or hints as to American future policy can be given.

In a certain sense this is the weakness in the European situation. The British, being a Democracy, cannot commit their people to war until facts confront them which demand war. In the United States, until concrete issues clearly require consideration of whether American policy is involved, nothing can be said by American spokesmen. Hitler is alert enough to take advantage of this weakness on the part of the Democracies in handling their diplomatic strategy. Being a one-man government, he need ask nobody how far he can go.

The opinion is beginning to develop here, however, that even Hitler will not venture to bring on a war because his economic resources are not comparable to those of Germany in 1914, notwithstanding his protestations about the futility of a blockade. Whether Germany can be blockaded or not is hardly a question of opinion so much as it is a question of statistics on resources and the potential power of the British-French fleets.

U. S. Would Pay

So far as the United States is concerned, there seems no doubt that war supplies would be bought here in the next war for the allied governments as they were in the last war. A protest from various groups will be inevitable, but the difficulty of marking out munitions from necessary raw materials used and the problem of restricting exports to Canada, which is a part of the British empire as Mr. Roosevelt recently reminded European dictatransforming the proceeds into American dollars.

Whether this is a temporary situation and may be changed by the announcement of a truce in the Czechoslovakian controversy, or whether we are on the verge of a long drawn-out crisis which will not end till the Democracies of the world have persuaded Hitler that he dare not make war, is a factor not easily clarified and hence markets everywhere are responding nervously to all sorts of apprehensions.

The important fact is that the farmers of mid-west America are being materially affected by the world-wide developments and that no matter how effectively isolation policies are practiced, such repercussions do influence commodity prices.

The American government is keenly aware of these interrelationships, even though very little is said publicly about it by high officials. There can be no doubt that American diplomats abroad are doing everything in their power to help avert a war, but they are limited by the knowledge that in America a very substantial public opinion is against "meddling." Menasha Firemen, Police Practice First Aid Methods

Begin Study in School Under Direction of Leon C. Palmer

Menasha — Firemen and police of Menasha returned to school Thursday afternoon and were not excused with a brief study period. Leon C. Palmer, Appleton, instructor in first aid, conducted a 3-hour drill in artificial respiration at the city hall.

The lesson was the first in the series of 10 3-hour sessions on the various phases of first aid which the members of the two departments will study in the next 10 weeks. Artificial respiration by the prone pressure method was first demonstrated by Mr. Palmer after which the students took turns in practicing the method on each other. Some of the men have slightly sore ribs today from the pressure in unaccustomed places.

In addition to showing the correct method and then supervising as the various members of the department practiced, Mr. Palmer went through the various steps to explain the reason for each step.

Attend Sessions

Firemen present at the meeting included Chief Paul Theimer, Assistant Chief John Dombrowski, Cornelius Rippe, Arthur Gutman, John Stommel, Ed Heim, and John Mueller.

Ice House Burns West of Neenah

Blaze in Converted Refrigerator Car Causes $200 Damage

Neenah — A railroad refrigerator car which had been converted into an ice house at the A. E. Schultz Fuel and Ice company farm west of Neenah was destroyed by fire last night. About $200 damage was done. There was no ice in the house.

Mr. Schultz said that workmen had been cutting lumber used to hold ice in place with an acetylene torch and the burners caught fire. They didn't notice the flames until an hour afterwards.

The Neenah fire department sent out one of its pumps, but because the fire had spread to the insulation between the walls of the car, firemen were unable to get to the flames. They concentrated their efforts on keeping the fire from spreading to the large barn nearby.

Firemen were notified at 7:35 and worked until 10 o'clock.

Junior Farmers Give Beef Cattle Industry New Start in County

Neenah — Beef calf industry in Winnebago county, heretofore unimportant because of the large number of dairy cattle raised, apparently is coming into its own, according to R. C. Heffernon, county agricultural agent.

The county agent last winter started work on the beef calf project in the junior clubs throughout the county, and as a result, 19 boys and girls selected beef calves as a project. A carload of calves was brought into Neenah and from this carload the youngsters selected their animals, the agent recalled.

They fed and cared for the animals with the object of a good fat calf show at the county fair in mind, the agent said, and all expectations were surpassed when a fine class of 21 animals was led into the pavilion at the show.

The champion calf, owned by Betty Lou Eckstein, was sold at 15¢ cents a pound. It weighed 888 pounds. The second prize calf, owned by Charles Ross, was purchased for 11¢ cents a pound, and weighed 782 pounds. All of the animals were sold.

Rain Handicaps Football Drills For Menasha High

Squad Holds Only One Outdoor Session in 1st Week of Practice

Menasha — Although the period for football practice is over a week old, Menasha High school gridders have staged only one drill out of doors. That was Wednesday and Coach Calder made the most of his opportunity with a lengthy session of grass drills, windsprints and exercises before going to work on plays.

Thursday it again was impossible to go out of doors so the squad of 50 candidates reported in the school gymnasium. Some wore tennis shoes and others played in their stocking feet, but one group ran plays against a six-man line while groups of backs worked on ball handling. Only one week remains before the opening game of the season against Oshkosh High school under the lights at Butte des Morts field next Friday night.

The Bluejays were hard-lit by graduation. Only three letter-men are on the squad. Calder has referred to the team as his "question marks" because so many of the candidates have not had experience and what they will do under game conditions is unknown.

The backfield apparently should be better than the line for this year the team will boast several speedy runners. In the backfield Drucks has been placed at fullback. He is the only regular letterman back from last year. Dan Stommel has worked at quarterback with Jack Grode, a left-hander, at the right halfback. In the drill Thursday, Earl Block converted from center, and Ken DuCharme, reserve team player last year, alternated at the left halfback post.

In the line Thomas and Ed Hill were at ends. Hill won a letter as a reserve last year as did Henry Landskron, who worked at tackle yesterday. John Lewandowski worked at the other tackle post. Guards were Hank Shaw and Jean Grode with Norman Michalski at center.

Coach Calder indicated that there might be changes after the squad gets out doors and has a chance to demonstrate its ability.

Hohnberger stopped his car behind the Shleski automobile but Buss, fourth in line, was unable to stop, according to the police report, striking the Hohnberger car. The Hohnberger car was pushed against the Shleski car. The automobiles were damaged but the bus was not, according to the police.

Movie Land Its People and Products

Pat O'Brien in a sportive moment bashes Jimmie Fidler, the movie commentator, on the bean, putting him temporarily out of commission. Pat and Jim are both appearing in Warners' "Garden of the Moon."

By Jimmie Fidler
Hollywood — Idol Chatter: Una Merkel's down-South drawl is my favorite sedative—two minutes conversation with her and I haven't a worry left. No women allowed on the "Dawn Patrol" set—the flyers wear nothing but fleeced-lined sky suits and they peel between scenes. Peas in a pod: Joy Hodges and Josephine Dunn. Warner Baxter's a bust in Italy—the Black-shirt like him so well. Jimmie Fidler they've installed statues in their theater lobbies.

First picture to receive an Academy Award was "Wings"—way back in '27. Anita Louise can't decide whether to give away the white peacock a fan sent her—or to buy an estate to match the bird. M-G-M's new rave, Alan Marshall, is hauntingly reminiscent of John Gilbert. Members of the Child Welfare association would get cold chills when the director shrieks "kill that baby"—but it's only an order to turn off a small spotlight.

Even after two years' acquaintance, it always surprises me to find Bob Taylor such a "regular" guy. Secret ambition: to watch Stan Laurel's expressions when he previews the first Oliver Hardy-Harry Laundon comedy. Wonder if it's unrequited love that keeps Olivia de Havilland from gaining back that lost weight? Today's philosophy: In this town a good line is usually the shortest distance between ambition and success.

We were discussing Clark Gable's phenomenal popularity, which hasn't slumped once in nearly eight years, and everyone had a different explanation to advance. The girl next door said with an ecstatic shiver that his "masculinity" thrilled her, the young doctor who lives just a block south launched a long-winded harangue about the psychological fixations of feminine fans and the elderly lady who is visiting at our house attempted to prove that Clark Gable is a "nice" boy. Someone mentioned the Gable physique, another cited the Gable voice and still a third talked about the way he dresses. But a chief electrician who happens to be one of Clark's best friends, summed it all up by growling, "Appleauce, the reason you like him is because he's a miracle—a completely natural, down-to-earth swell guy—and you're not used to seeing men like that on the screen!" I think that electrician hit a bulls-eye.

Had lunch in the Warner Brothers Green Room with Director Mike Curtiz, George Brent—and Marie Wilson. Marie was at her dizziest best—chattering like a magpie and saying exactly nothing. "Gott," said Curtiz, "are you neffer serious, Marie?" And George, shaking his head ruefully, asked why she doesn't try reading a good book. Marie beamed at them brightly. "Gentlemen," she retorted, "confidentially, I do have my serious moments and I have read a book. But don't you dare betray me—I don't want to lose my professional reputation!"

Quotes and comment: Helen Broderick: "It's the figure, not the face that counts in this world of mice and men." Maybe—but Martha Raye is still playing comedy.

Patricia (Honeychile) Wilder: "If you want to get yourself a beau, take up knitting—you'll have all the fellas you want. Uh-huh—if you know when to drop a stitch."

Bob Hope: "The bills for my wife's hats used to scare me—now the hats do it." Wonder if he's seen the new one Loretta Young wore to the Troc last night?

Joan Bennett: "Now I am the head of my own household, the arbiter of my own destiny, my own woman. Now I am a matriarch!" Her ex-patriarch seems happy about the whole thing, too.

Met Gary Cooper and Sandra Shaw last night and listened to his detailed description of the "fool

3 Cardinals Take Part in Services

Mundelein, Cardinal Hayes' schoolmate of 50 years ago, celebrate the mass, arrived hours before the procession formed, and stood in pale sunlight.

The band of the 16th United States infantry led the procession playing a funeral march. Then, paying tribute to Cardinal Hayes, who was bishop ordinary of Roman Catholic chaplains of the United States army and navy, came detachments of soldiers, marines and sailors.

Next was a detachment from the 165th Infantry, the famous old 69th New York regiment.

The cathedral altar boys wearing black cassocks and white surplices, and students from Catholic schools followed the soldiers.

Then came the religious brothers, in black cassocks and white bibs—Christian brothers, Franciscans and Jesuits.

The secular clergy—2,000 priests from all over the United States—in black cassocks, white surplices and black birettas, was next.

At the cathedral entrance, the procession passed between files of soldiers of the 16th Infantry and flags of the 165th Infantry held by color guards.

The great group of bishops and archbishops, the apostolic delegate to the United States, Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, who lives in Washington, D. C., and three cardinals brought a blaze of purple into the cathedral.

Cardinal Mundelein was attended by former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who wore the uniform of a papal chamberlain, blue trousers with gold stripe, and a red coat; and by George MacDonald, in the uniform of a papal marquis.

proof burglar alarm system which he installed at his home a few days ago when a new epidemic of robberies broke out. It consists of ten electric beams — invisible rays. Whenever any one of them is interrupted, an alarm sounds in the house and in the nearest police station. But in the middle of his glowing description, a funny expression swept across the Cooper pan. "You know," he said, "I forgot to turn the damned thing on tonight — and it's the servants' night out!"

Life in Holland

V-TULIP BULBS
Recently a catalog came to me from Holland. It was sent by a Dutch firm which exports tulip bulbs. Looking through the catalog, I found I could obtain a hundred bulbs for four dollars, or bulbs at the rate of four cents apiece. What a low price that would have seemed 300 years ago!

Queen Wilhelmina at age of about 40.

The story of the tulip is not very clear, but the flower grows wild in some parts of Asia also in northern Africa. An old record tells us that a merchant in Antwerp found some tulip bulbs in a bale of cloth shipped to him in 1570 from Constantinople. The merchant mistook the bulbs for onions, and ate a few of them with oil and vinegar!

Another record states that tulip bulbs were brought from Turkey to Vienna in 1572 by a professor of botany. The professor later moved to Holland, and took a number of bulbs with him.

People liked the flowers, and asked to buy some of the bulbs. As time went on, tulips became famous in Holland, England and France, but the bulbs were costly.

The liking for tulips grew into a "craze." People wanted the kinds which had special colorings on their petals, and were willing to pay high prices. In its worst form, the craze lasted from 1634 to 1637.

Special names were given to varieties of tulips. A bulb of the "Admiral Liefkens" tulip was sold for 4,000 florins, or something like $1,500 in our money. Bulbs of another kind, "The Semper Augustus," sold for sums equal to from $1,200 to $2,000 per bulb!

Sometimes a bulb was sold a dozen times or more, each time at a higher price. People tried to grow rich, by buying and selling bulbs.

Tulips can be grown from seed, but it takes from three to seven years for the flowers to appear, and the young plants must be handled with care. Until they do blossom, we cannot be sure of what their coloring will be.

At last the Dutch government took notice of the "tulip boom," and a law brought an end to the sky-high prices. It did not, however, end the interest of people in the flowers. Tulips were bought for planting, not to sell again.

Today Holland produces about 2,000 kinds of tulips. In April, miles and miles of many-colored tulips are to be seen in bloom.

Holland is classed as a kingdom, but the real power is in the hands of the voters who choose their law-makers. Queen Wilhelmina, the present monarch, was crowned in 1898, when she was only 18 years of age.

There are two capital cities in Holland — Amsterdam and The Hague.

THE CLOUDED MOON

By MAX SALTSMARSH

himself. He was putting through a big deal and he had to think of his business associates."

"And what did the Surete do?" I asked.

"The Surete," she answered, "after six months, reported that they had a clue. An unnamed girl, answering to my sister's description, had been seen at Deauville with a man called Vladimir Rakovsky, but they lost track of them both, and when they found him again, in Italy, he was alone and denied ever having seen her. It was then that my uncle decided to send Pat O'Donnell across to look for her. We had known him a long time. He was working for an agency whose head was a friend of ours. He was kind and trustworthy."

She broke off and sipped thirstily at her cocktail. "I should have explained," she went on, "that last fall my uncle decided to come to the Riviera this summer for a short vacation. He had engaged rooms for us all at Cap d'Antibes, and we were to have sailed the first week in August; but then he suddenly got a cable from Pat, saying: 'On the trail. Come at once,' and we came a week earlier than we had meant. We got there two days ago and have been waiting news from him ever since. I can't think—her lip suddenly trembled—"why he doesn't get in touch with us."

"Ottillie," I said hurriedly, "you've taken a big knock—now you must face a lesser one. O'Donnell was the second man to leave the casino last night. He was shot down trying to catch your sister's murderer."

She gasped, and every atom of color drained from her face. "Pat too?" she said tonelessly. "First Melanie, then him. Who will be the next?"

"To answer that," said Hugo quietly, "it would be a considerable help if you would explain just why your sister left home and what you know of the three men she was associating with."

For an instant she was silent, obviously fighting for self-control, then she looked up at him calmly. "I don't understand you," she said. "I've told you how it happened. I can't do more."

Hugo stood up abruptly. "In that case," he said, and though his voice was level I could hear that he was very angry, "there's no more to be said. If you will tell me where your car is, I will bring it round for you. You know," he added reflectively, "you are a very foolish young woman. You have no reason to distrust me. You know who I am, and I have kept very little back from you."

She caught him up quickly. "Then you have kept something back?"

"Certainly," he answered gravely. "And I am very glad of it, for I shall now use that something to bargain with you. Miss Will, we are no disinterested spectators. We are both of us, my friend and I, as deeply involved as you are—he because your sister came to him for help, and I because I knew O'Donnell. But if you refuse to put your cards on the table, I certainly see no reason why we should tell you the contents of your sister's letter."

Reunion

"Letter?" she cried. "What letter?"

"The letter she wrote to Lumsden here, shortly before her death, but which he only received yesterday afternoon. There are some queer items of information in it. She speaks of something 'they' propose to do to a mysterious 'he' on a certain date; she begs Lumsden to warn this unknown 'he' and persuade him to go back home. He broke off, eyeing her keenly. "Does that date interest you, Miss Will, and the other details that I haven't mentioned?"

She stared up at him, wide-eyed, piteous. "I can't fight any longer," she said wildly. "I must see that letter. I'll tell you everything."

"But not just yet," I put in quickly. From where I sat, I faced the promise, and at that moment I had seen, threading its way through the pine boles towards us a squat, podgy figure in white trousers and lavender shirt. Baron Stahls on the way to break up the party."

She caught her breath at that, but before she had time to speak, the fat man stood beside our table, a most unpleasant smile creasing his swarthy face. "Miss Will," he said, and bowed jerkily. "I am so happy that I find you! Your uncle, he is so disturbed! He looks everywhere for you—he not find you nowhere, he ask everyone in the hotel. You come back with me now—no?"

Hugo turned slowly and faced the other.

"Baron," he said softly, "you arrive in the nick of time. Miss Will has just accepted an invitation to have tea with my sister at our villa in Cannes, and we were debating how to let her uncle know her whereabouts. If you will give him a message we shall be most grateful."

Ottillie Will was very silent as I drove her back to Cannes in her long, white roadster. Hugo kept the Hispano a comfortable twenty yards ahead of us, and from time to time I saw her eyes resting on the back of his head with a curious, reflective scrutiny.

"I asked you to take me along," she confided, "because I don't dare to be alone at the moment—Besides, I find that friend of yours a trifle terrifying. He's brilliant, of course, and terribly good-looking, but there's something relentless about him. When we're talking, I feel that I've got to be fighting the whole time to hold my own."

I, too, had the feeling that between her and Hugo a spiritual battle was imminent, the clash of two dominating personalities.

The gates of the Chateau stood open. As we crossed the hall the sound of voices drifted from the living-room and my heart sank, for that resonant bass could come from only one larynx that I knew, and I did not fancy that Hugo was at all in the mood for another encounter with Mr. Dunning.

Sure enough, as I opened the door, the gentleman himself came into view, reclining as before in Hugo's favorite chair, with Ada, primly upright on her tabouret, beside him.

"Well, Mr. Stern," he drawled, in his big, booming voice, "the wanderer has returned as you see."

He broke off, staring, and in that moment there was a sudden movement beside me.

"Cuthbert!" cried Ottillie Will. "Cuthbert, have you heard what they've done to her?" and in a flash she was across the room and had thrown herself into his arms, sobbing as if her heart would break.

Mrs. Henry Knitt Is Re-elected President Of Ladies Aid Society

Clintonville — Mrs. Henry Knitt was re-elected president of Christus Lutheran Ladies Aid society at its September meeting Wednesday afternoon at the church parlors. Others chosen to office were: Mrs. William C. Schulz, vice president; Mrs. Arthur Schoenke, recording secretary; and Mrs. E. E. Larson, financial secretary. Mrs. Edmund Rosnow was re-elected to her office as treasurer of the organization. The afternoon closed with the serving of a luncheon by Mesdames John Needham, Tom Loberg, Charles Lust and Anton Muthig.

Bethany Ladies Aid society held its September meeting at the church parlors Wednesday afternoon. The business session was followed by a social hour and a covered-dish luncheon. The October meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. George Below.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Wiese and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Olen are spending this week at Waukesha, where they are attending the annual Methodist state conference. The Clintonville and Marion Methodist congregations have asked that the Rev. Mr. Wiese be returned to their churches for the ensuing year. Mr. Milford Etheridge and son Neil returned Tuesday from a four day visit at Wild Rose with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Jenks and other relatives.

The topic for the meeting will be on the marijuana weed with Mrs. B. W. May, chairman, assisted by Mrs. W. E. Wulke, Mrs. C. C. Rasey, Miss Hannah Phippen and Mrs. Louise Beversdorf.

Mildred Haese, daughter of Mrs. Amanda Haese is a member of the 1938 graduating class of the Theda Clark Nurses Training school. Commencement exercises were held Friday.

Pensions of $7.50 weekly for all persons in New Zealand over 60 years of age is provided in the New Zealand government's social security bill introduced into Parliament.

Zoo Is Attraction During Inspection Of Detention Camp

When county officials and members of the county board inspected the detention camp north of Sheleton yesterday, they found a Wisconsin menagerie.

The men saw a collection of animals that rivals a big-city zoo. Wisconsin's traditional animal, the badger, is there in all his glory, along with specimens of bear, coyote, deer, fox, partridge, skunk, owl, porcupine and even a few waddling turtles.

The men—about 35 in number—met at the camp in the afternoon and had a dinner at 5:30.

Highways Closed

The state highway department at Madison reported today that high water had closed four main roads in central Wisconsin.

Traffic has been halted on U. S. 12, west of Eau Claire; State 29, between Chippewa Falls and Abbotsford; State 58, between La Valle and Clinton in Sauk county; and State 19, between Wisconsin Rapids and Marshfield.

Detours have been established on Highways 29 and 13. The department said the roads will be open again when the water recedes.

A rainfall of 3.62 inches in the last 24 hours sent streams in the Marshfield area booming and caused the temporary closing of highways this morning. Highway 13 was closed at Klondike Corners near Colby. Highway 29 was blocked east of Abbotsford.

An eastbound North Western passenger train was held today at Stratford due to a washout between Fenwood and Edgar. Gravel trains were sent from Wausau to repair the damage. Officials declined to predict when traffic would be resumed.

High water necessitated the closing of Highway 153 at Halder. Wausau reported the Wisconsin river showed no appreciable rise there, but that 10,000 cubic feet of water was racing through the Eau Claire reservoir dam each second.

During the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest temperature in Appleton was 59 and the lowest, 42, according to charts of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. At 1 o'clock this afternoon, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 60 degrees.

Clarence O. Baetz, superintendent of the city sewage plant, reported that the rains have caused the greatest sustained runnage through the plant since it was established. The city engineer's office has received numerous complaints of blocked sewers.

The Fox river has been "affected very little" by the rains, it was reported from the office of the United States engineer this morning.

Hudson, Wis.—(U. S. A.)—The west-bound mail-passenger train of the Chicago and North Western line was wrecked near here today, killing the engineer and injuring several passengers.

The wreck was caused by a washout, result of a torrential rain that fell here beginning last night.

The train was bound from Chicago to the Twin Cities and was due about 8 A. M.

The dead engineer was August Reick. At least three persons were hurt, but first reports did not say how seriously.

The train was running late because of rough weather and plowed into the washout at high speed, according to first reports. The engine rolled on to the weakened track and went over in the ditch. The fireman jumped but the engineer was trapped in the cab and killed.

Several coaches were strewn about the right-of-way.

The train left Chicago shortly before midnight. About half was on its run, it began encountering unfavorable weather.

County to Send Two Doctors to Medical Parley

Dr. Carl Neidhold, Dr. Guy
W. Carlson Will Attend Convention

The ninety-seventh annual convention of the Wisconsin Medical society will be held at Milwaukee Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Delegates to the convention representing the Outagamie County Medical society will be Dr. Guy W. Carlson and Dr. Carl Neidhold.

The convention in reality is a 3-day post-graduate course in recent scientific advances in medicine. While physicians have an opportunity during the year to attend local medical meetings to keep abreast of the times, the state meeting gives them a chance to learn from physicians, who are well qualified, the results of their studies, research and experience.

Outstanding physicians from all sections of the United States will appear before the convention. In addition to the scientific discussions will be a series of scientific exhibits. Particular care has been exercised this year to have discussions of immediate and practical value to family physicians.

Special sections have been provided for the specialists where ultra-scientific problems will be discussed. The out-of-state physicians scheduled to appear on the program are: A. F. Abt, Chicago; W. R. Adams, Chicago; W. C. Alvarez, Rochester; W. L. Benedict, Rochester; W. F. Braasch, Rochester; A. F. Bratrud, Minneapolis; Samuel Brown, Cincinnati; J. A. Connor, Chicago; J. S. Coulter, Chicago; H. H. Cummings, Ann Arbor; Loyal Davis, Chicago; M. E. Davis, Chicago; C. P. Emerson, Indianapolis; R. L. J. Kennedy, Rochester; H. L. Kretschmer, Chicago; C. P. McCord, Detroit; R. W. McNeely, Chicago; Harry Mock, Chicago; O. B. Nugent, Chicago; M. M. Peet, Ann Arbor; C. B. Puestow, Chicago; Samuel Saling, Chicago; Alphonse M. Schmitt, S. First we must tell you of the rich textured beauty of the new, fall coat fabrics — but we lavish our greatest enthusiasm on the furs with which they are trimmed — a truly treasured collection of coat masterpieces in fabric and fur awaits you here. You'll make an enviable choice!

Fur Sleeves Are Smart on Cloth Coats

It's a new Fall fashion and very flattering. Sleeves of fur and perhaps a small fur collar on your new cloth coat. It's part of the trend toward elegance and formality that is so much a part of the new season. Or you may prefer the style with just a band of fur down the sleeve.

Fabrics from Forstmann and Juillard

The makers of coat fabrics have surpassed themselves this season — the new cloths are so rich in appearance, so free of bulkiness, so fine in quality, so delightfully different. There are many lovely brown shades, rusts, teal, green, wine shades and the always smart black.

The Slightly Bloused Effect in a Youthful New Coat

A youthful and novel style for the slender woman. The slight blouse over the slim belt is a charming fashion which shows off the trim lines of the figure to wonderful advantage.

Fur Tuxedo Trim

Richness and long, slender lines are attained by the Tuxedo of fur. An important fashion for this Fall and Winter.
